Bryan Gave U. S. Code, Says Wilson

Wilson Criticises President and Secretary for Sending Private Agents to Mexico.

WILL REPORT ON MONDAY

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, on his arrival here for conferences on the Mexican situation with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, announced he had prepared a memorandum suggesting no policy the American Government should pursue, which he will submit to the President and Mr. Bryan.

Ambassador Wilson said he expected to return to Mexico City by the steamer sailing next Thursday from New York. As to his conferences with the officials here, he understood, he added, that he were wise to transmit information on the situation and resented the suggestion frequently made in the newspapers that he would be called to account for his personal acts. "I recognize that the President and Secretary have a right, however," he said, "to question me about anything."

Criticizes Sending of Agent.

The ambassador described his treatment by President Wilson and Secretary Bryan hitherto as courteous in every respect, except one—the sending of separate agents to investigate conditions in Mexico. He severely criticized both William Bayard Hale and Reginald Del Valle, who he declared were acting for the Administration there.

"Hale and Devalle are equipped with copies of the secret code of the state department," he said. "I know that because assistance in the use of the code was sought of one of the secretaries of the American embassy in Mexico City.

It is most unusual to equip personal investigators or agents on personal missions in foreign countries with this code, and I think if the Senate committee on foreign relations knew of it there would be an investigation.

"William Bayard Hale got to Mexico City and announced his views on public questions the first day he was there.

Demand Release of Prisoners.

"The Huerta government people there may be come to Mexico with a brief of accusations from the Madeists. He avoided the leading citizens of Mexico City, and I do not see upon what he could have based the reports to this country which the newspapers say he has made."

The Mines Company of America today asked the State Department to take immediate action looking to the release of Charles Biesel, general manager of their properties in Chihuahua, and Bernard McDonald, chauffeur, who were arrested a few days ago by the Mexican federals and are now held in prison.

The federals arrested Biesel on the charge that he shipped quantities of silver out of the country without paying a duty to the government. Biesel's defence is that he paid the duty to the rebels who are in control of the Chihuahua section. Biesel also declared that the federals have offarded no protection

Cincinnati Directed to Defend American Colony at Kuklang.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Rear-Admiral Nebolson, commanding the Asiatic squadron, cabled the Navy Department today that he had directed the gunboat Cincinnati to steam from Nanking to Kuklang, where there is a small American colony which might be menaced by revolutionary outbreaks there.

SHANGHAI, July 26.—Reinforced by Cantonese and Hunanese, the Southern rebels today again stormed the Shanghai arsenal. Repeated assaults were made on the Northern army stronghold, but the rebels were driven back each time, suffering tremendous losses.

British, Dutch, French and Japanese warships are here to guard the foreign interests.

All night searchlights were trained by British warships on the Custom House and ammunition magazines.

With the native city ablaze, thousands of homes burned and their occupants in flight, the government troops are reported as winning.

It is said that the city of Suchow has fallen into the hands of the Northern forces and that the garrisons of the forts at Wusung have joined them.

Strike of Railroad Trainmen Averted

NEW YORK, July 26.—The threatened strike of trainmen on the Eastern railroads has practically been averted. The railroad managers, after a meeting with the Board of Mediators today, waived their right to include their requests that their grievances also be taken up for arbitration.

The action of the railroads will mean that the entire matter will be quickly adjudicated, articles of arbitration drawn and signed by both sides and the matter submitted to the arbitration board which will be selected just as soon as the mediators report to the President.

Boston Pensioner Proves He's Alive

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Having convinced the Pension Bureau that he was very much alive, John Sullivan of No. 139 L street, South Boston, was restored to the pension roll today. CYCLISTS CRASH ON TURNPIKE

Boy on Bicycle Struck by Speeding Motor Cycle Near Saugus.

THE LAD IS LIKELY TO DIE

Two persons were injured, one probably fatally, as the result of a collision between a motorcycle and a bicycle on the Newburyport Turnpike, near Saugus, today. The injured are:

Gordon Meister, 12, of No. 414 Central street, Saugus.

Henry J. Holland, No. 617½ Main street, Springfield.

Holland, who was operating the motorcycle, was headed towards Malden at twenty miles an hour.

Coming toward him was an automobile, behind which the Meister boy was riding on his bicycle. Holland turned out to escape being hit by the machine. Then, turning back towards the centre of the road, he crashed into Meister, who was struck by the automobile.

Both were unconscious when picked up. The Meister boy was taken home and Holland to the Lynn Hospital in the police ambulance. Holland was suffering from concussion of the brain, but will recover.

The Meister boy was suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries. His recovery is doubtful.

Great Peaceful Suffrage Meeting

London Is Given Surprise; Mrs. Pankhurst Better.

LONDON, July 26.—London was treated to a great, orderly, peaceful suffragette demonstration today. Four processions, composed of peaceful suffragettes from all over England, marched through the streets and were accorded a great demonstration.

They gathered in Hyde Park, where Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the Woman Suffrage League, urged them to remain from violence and declared that more good would be done by peaceful methods.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the militant suffragette leader, who was taken secretly from after her release from prison Thursday evening, was reported to be much improved today. She passed a good night and slept well. The physicians believe that the blood transfusion operation yesterday saved her life.

New Parcel Post Order Will Stand

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Postmaster-General Burleson's order increasing the size of parcels and reducing rates in the first and second zones of the parcel post service, to take effect August 25, will be allowed to stand without legislative attempt to repeal it. The opinion among the members of the Senate Postoffice Committee is that the order would be a benefit to the public and would not result in a loss to the government.

May Name D. I. Fitzgerald.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Daniel I. Fitzgerald has been strongly urged upon vacancy at the Rutland, Mass., postoffice, and it is understood that the name will be sent to the Senate in a few days.

Boy Pinned Under Car for 30 Minutes

Little Chap Crushed by Trolley Is Conscious While Being Freed.

For a half-hour today little Norman Smith, three years old, son of Mrs. Mary Smith, a widow of No. 110 Charles street, Waltham, lay crushed but conscious under the wheel and fender of an open trolley car in Prospect street.

The child's eyes were open and he looked anxiously at the crowd that stood about eager but helpless to help him. He did not cry. He had been playing, and in dodging an automobile, jumped in front of the trolley car driven by Motorman Walter Morrissette.

No jack was available and it was necessary to get one in the car barn, a half-mile away. It was exactly thirty minutes before they freed Norman. A doctor who got there just before they lifted the boy from under the car said the shock was so great the little fellow was really not suffering. He is at the Waltham Hospital with a fractured skull and crushed hips. He is not expected to live.

AMERICAN PAIR WIN DAVIS CUP DOUBLES MATCH

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 26.—In the tennis doubles contest played today before a tremendous gathering of tennis enthusiasts, the American doubles team, Maurice E. McLoughlin and Harold H. Hackett, was victorious.

After McLoughlin's defeat in the singles match at the hands of F. B. Park, the rumor that the American champion had gone stale gained credence in the minds of the English enthusiasts and they turned out today in numbers to watch their crack doubles team, Barret and Dixon, gain a strangle hold on the coveted Davis cup.

The American's victory today gives them the lead in the series of doubles and singles contests, and their chances seem exceedingly bright to gather in first honors.

The summary:

M. E. McLoughlin and H. H. Hackett defeated Barrett and Dixon, 3—7, 6—1, 2—0, 6—4.

The American team has now won two matches, one singles and the doubles, and has but to win one of the single matches to be played Monday, to annex the trophy.

SEVERAL HURT IN MALDEN

Two Men Are Bravely Rescued from Roof of Blazing Dye Plant.

OTHER FIRES ARE STARTED

Firemen are searching the ruins of the New England Dyeing House at No. 116 Charles street, Malden, for the bodies of two girls, who it is feared were caught and burned to death when fire destroyed the building today.

A two hundred gallon tank of naphtha, stored in an outbuilding, exploded shortly after the fire started, and the roar was heard all over Malden.

Morris Schacter, proprietor of the company, is attempting to locate the girls' homes, for the chance that they escaped and went there direct.

Several men were injured in the fire, a woman was burned when a spark set fire to the curtains in her home nearby, two men were rescued from the roof of the burning building, and half a dozen small blazes started from sparks in the neighborhood. The damage was about $20,000, One automobile was burned.

It is now believed that an automobile, which backfired in the alley next the building, set fire to naphtha fumes and caused the first explosion. In five minutes the combustible wooden building was a mass of flames.

Mrs. William Kelliher of No. 95 Charles street, was burned in putting out embers in her home, which caught from a cinder. The Yale Knitting Mill, across the street, caught fire twice and the 100 girls employed there marched out and stayed in the street till the danger was over.

William Appleham, manager of the plant, rescued Flare Schacter, a daughter of the proprietor, who fainted.

John Less and Barney Steeden, caught on the second floor, climbed to the roof and were rescued from there by the firemen. Each was badly burned. They said there were two girls left on the second floor.

The Malden Carpet Cleaning Company plant was ignited, but was extinguished.

Employes of the dyeing plant lost most of their clothing, hanging in the lockers," and the men employed lost money and a gold watch. Much highpriced clothing there to be cleaned was destroyed.

Bryan Confers With Committee.

Secretary of State Bryan today conferred with the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations respecting the proposed protectorate for Nicaragua. It was stated a special meeting of the committee would be held Tuesday and the treaty reported to the Senate in amended form.

It is understood that Mr. Bryan conveyed to the committee the decision of President Wilson not to lift the embargo against the exportation of arms from this country to rebel forces in Mexico.

American intervention in Mexico is inevitable, in the opinion of a majority of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations.

There are seventeen members of this Senate Committee which dominates the government's policy in foreign affairs. All except five of these were interviewed by the AMERICAN correspondent today, and with striking unanimity they agreed that intervention is the only possible outcome in the present situation.

"Huerta Government Virile."

Ambassador Wilson boarded the office of Secretary of State Bryan today and ex-Secretary of State Bryan today and expressed his views on the Mexican situation. The interview with Mr. Bryan was preliminary with one which the envoy will hold with President Wilson. The ambassador's first act on his arrival here today was to repudiate almost entirely the interviews sent out from New York last night. He said:

Most of the statements attributed to me in the papers this morning are absolutely false. I did not call General Carranza a bandit or refer to the revolutionary movement as a campaign of bandits, nor did I say that all talk of mediation was "rot." What I did say was that a board of mediators going into Mexico at the present time would have as much chance as a board of arbitration in the midst of a strike conditions that prevailed in West Virginia some months ago. I am not to be placed in the attitude of being a mere press agent for the Huerta administration in Mexico.

There is only one bona fide revolution with high ideals in Mexico. That is the revolution in the State of Sonora, headed by Governor Pesqueira. They are fighting for State rights, and they are doing no looting.

The Ambassador said the Huerta government was "strong and virile," and that if recognized by the United States it would establish peace. He denied, however, that he ever said he favored recognition by this country. He continued:

To Report on Monday.

I am not here to advise the President on any course. I am here merely to make a first hand report on conditions in Mexico and to tell what I have done during these turbulent times.

Personally I have never recognized the Huerta government. I attended Huerta's receptions, but that was not recognizing him. It was merely recognizing the de facto government that then existed. When I sent telegrams to our consuls urging them to support President Huerta I was not recognizing him. I was saving human lives.

YANKEE AND COMRADE MINE OFFICIALS, ARE SENTENCED TO DEATH

EL PASO, July 26.—Charles Hiesel, general manager of the Mines Company of America, a $10,000,000 corporation, and Bernard McDonald, an Englishman, general manager of the San Patricio Mining & Milling Company, have been arrested and sentenced to death in Chihuahua.

The arrests were made by General Orozco, the federal leader in possession of the city. Hiesel went to El Rayo to bring American employes over the border for work in the mines. The men possessed a high power touring car and money.

They were arrested at Santa Rosilio. W. I. Mayo of East St. Louis brought the news here. The men had no charges made against them and it is said the arrests were made simply to confiscate the car and money.

Hiesel has a home here but comes from New York and Chihuahua where the company has offices.

Through J. F. Lacey of Chicago and W. A. Aldrich in New York the case, it is said, has been carried to the State department at Washington.

REPRODUCTION of picture of a boatload of Denver, Colorado, girls in bathing costumes, for publishing which the editor of the Rocky Mountain News was indicted by the Grand Jury.

Here is the picture which the Denver Rocky Mountain News published, with the result that the artistic editor of that enterprising newspaper was indicted by the Grand Jury.

The picture, as a glance tells, is nothing more than a boatload of Denver maidens who are almost amphibious—expert swimmers and divers who disport themselves in the waters of the South Platte River and other streams. Here is their eloquent description:

They are worthy daughters of Denver. "Queen City of the Plains;" they are Colorado maiads, and, save that their heads are not crowned with blossoms, are like the naiads of mythology — light-hearted, musical, beneficent, shapely.

If there is any doubt about their light-heartedness, pray observe their smiles, and incidentally their teeth, like rows of pearls, half hidden by the contrasting crimson of their lips.

Their shapeliness—what's the use of talking about their shapeliness? Just look at the picture again.

TEN THOUSAND SHOE WORKERS ATTEND PICNIC

Atwood Park, Saugus, today was the mecca for ten thousand shoe workers, with their families, from Lynn and South Shore shoe factories. The United Shoe Workers of America, Joint Council of Lynn, held their annual picnic, and never before did so many shoe men gather together in one place at one time.

Besides the remarkable program of open to all sporting events, there was a field and track meet which drew prominent amateurs from all over the East. Joe Silva, of the North Dorchester A. A. was the star of the day.

Eight thousand picnickers paraded through the streets of Lynn with a band leading, before taking cars for Saugus.

After lunch two or three baseball games were organized in short order between factory teams, and there were "scrub" games on the outskirts, and in the fields near the park.

Events were arranged for morning and afternoon. The track and field events were run off in mid-afternoon, and shoeworkers were among the entries. The races were hard fought, and the amateur stars had no monopoly of the places.

George Gage had supervisory power over the plans for the day. Louis Hurlburt served on the committee. M. H. Leonard was an assistant. Thomas McAuliffe was chairman of the committee on sports. John Madden was in charge of the "privileges." M. J. Tracy was chairman of the reception committee. C. O. Whidden was his aide.

The picnic was an all-day affair. Most of the picknickers planned to stay for supper and go home in the evening. There was a band playing all day, and some enthusiasts danced on the grass. Special cars carried the ten thousand to and from the park.

Miss Mary I. Sullivan of Needham is seeking to recover damages from John B. Lloyd for alleged breach of promise, and at the same time Daniel B. Smith, an attorney, has entered a $50,000 suit against Lloyd for legal services.

Meanwhile Lloyd is said to be out of the State, where service cannot be made on him. Miss Sullivan has begun proceedings in equity in the Suffolk Superior Court. She asks the court to determine the amount of damages due her, as she views the case. She also seeks to reach property which, she claims, Lloyd has conveyed to others to avoid her suit.

Miss Sullivan says that she was to be married to Lloyd June 20, last, but that she received a letter from Lloyd on her intended wedding day, telling her that he could not marry her. Miss Sullivan also says that Lloyd immediately left the State.

Chief McGarr was surprised to learn that the Atlanta authorities should so suddenly exchange their attitude.

The complaint was that Mattiford had kidnaped the five-year-old son and nine-year-old daughter of the mill president, Mrs. Bertha E. Barwick, mother of the children, was said to have been living with them at the Hotel Clarendon, and that Mattiford had an apartment there also.

"I Give Thanks That I Have Been Spared the Ignominy of a Death in Prison"

Wrote Cardenio F. King, Former Financier and Convicted Embezzler.

He had expected to be pardoned when he wrote thus.

What a note of pathos there is in the above will be appreciated by every one who has read the papers of the week recording the tragic death of King on the very day that Governor Foss and members of the Council were desperately endeavoring to secure a vote upon his release.

While in jail King kept a diary of his emotions, thoughts, incidents of jail life, the tragedy and comedy that moved those about him; in fact, he told for the first time HOW THE PRISONERS REALLY LIVE IN CHARLESTOWN STATE PRISON.

His diary will be printed in the Sunday and Daily AMERICAN, beginning in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN.

Another article written by King is that from which the quotation at the head of this announcement was taken, a statement thanking those whom he expected would cause his release. This statement has been given to the Sunday AMERICAN for publication, and is one of the most striking human documents ever printed.

WOMEN FIND MASHERS HAVE TAKEN TO COVER

The war of Boston women on the mashers has already had some effect. Notice notice was served by the members of the Woman's Homestead Association that in the future they and their friends will take their protection at night from the mashing fiend into their own hands, the streets in the districts frequented by ride type have been remarkably clean and free from trouble of this sort.

Last night members of the association formed a patrol near the Public Garden, armed with their whistles and heavy canes. They watched for mashers. Strangely enough none were found. They had been frightened by the threat of personal violence, and proved agents, moved to Mrs. Charlotte Smith, who is back of the movement, that they are all cowards.

The patrol made its way to Huntington avenue, one of the especially noted resorts of men who prey upon young girls. Huntington avenue was "quiet," according to the report of the women.

Question Legality.

There is some question as to the legality of using the whistles with which they are provided. While Mayor Fitzgerald's secretary informed the women that they might carry whistles, but might not blow them, members of the association declare that they are willing to make a test case in court, if it be necessary, and that they will still continue to use this means of protection.

"If the police won't protect us at night we will protect ourselves," is the slogan.

The Homestead Association has ordered from a factory three dozen heavy sticks. They are straight, with a large round head, and of "just a comfortable size and weight to wield a good blow," said Mrs. Smith. The sticks will be furnished to women interested in the movement at the headquarters of the association, together with the police whistles.

Will Patrol Tonight.

Tonight the association plans to keep even a stricter watch on Boston streets than ever. For Saturday night is the masher's favorite time for annoying women. Saturday night is the night when working girls are free, and practically the only night when they have a chance to make their calls on friends. There are more young women on the streets between 9 and 10 o'clock in the evening than at any other time, and to protect these girls the association will patrol the mashers' stamping grounds until midnight. Men who follow this form of amusement had better beware! The woman's patrol is at their heels!

'Birth Strike' to Force Equal Vote

BERLIN, July 26.—Declaration of a "birth strike" was suggested at a Socialist meeting held to discuss the advisability of a general strike as the best means of bringing about electoral reform in Prussia. The father of the idea was Dr. Alfred Bernstein, who declared that most successful pressure would be exerted on the government if mothers would announce:

"We will bring no children into the world to become citizens of this state unless better rights of citizenship are accorded."

What the Socialists oppose is the three class election system, by which a poor man has from one one-hundredth to one five-hundredth of the power of a

Kidd-Walsh Acrobat Team Is Disbanded

Hotel Girl Says Guests Must Get Landing Nets for Two-Story Falls.

The Kidd-Walsh acrobatic team is disbanded. Walsh says she will stay in the wings the next time a hotel guest falls two stories and that she won't be a "landing net."

John Kidd, a lodger, who fell from the third to the first floor in the National House in Cambridge street, West End, today owes his life to Bridget Walsh, dirty, a chambermaid, who happened to be standing in the lower hallway when he fell.

Kidd landed on the woman and escaped with a few bruises. She was injured, but not seriously. Both were taken to the Relief Hospital. The Walsh woman was later removed to the City Hospital where today it was said she probably would recover. Kidd, after being treated, was locked up at the Joy street station.

According to the police Kidd came home under the influence of liquor and was assisted to the third floor by another lodger. When they reached the landing Kidd discovered he left the key to his room down stairs. The other lodger started down after it. Kidd leaned over the railing and lost his balance. He fell thirty feet, bumping from one side of the stairs to the other.

MILLIONAIRE'S WIFE IN PARIS BATHING SUIT SETS BEACH FASHION

NEW YORK, July 26.—The admiration of all amphibians, the anguish of the envious and the wit of the wicked are the results of the appearance at New Monterey Beach, North Asbury Park, of Mrs. Elbridge Gerry Snow, Jr., in her 1913 bathing suit.

Fashion of beach or boardwalk has no more charming exemplar than Mrs. Snow, wife of the millionaire president of the Home Insurance Company, who is cousin to the founder of the Gerry Society. But the latest bathing suit dit comes from Paris and cost $1350) has made the season's hit.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. No more of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette, or chewing tobacco to pacify the morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, 534 Sixth Ave., 203 C, New York City, will send his book free, per application to any one who writes to him.

Hull Shell Fired by Militiamen

Hull and Pemberton folks breathed a sigh of relief today when they read Colonel Frederick Marah's statement that the eighteen-pound mortar shot which struck in Hull Thursday was fired by one of the militia in practice at the forts, and not by a member of the regular troops.

"No need for alarm," Colonel Marsh explained. "The Coast Artillery Corps are having a week's drill at Peddock's island, and one of them fired the shot. Target practice by the recruits is a different thing and there's no danger from it. As long as the Artillery men remain, I shall have them carefully watched."

ELIOT OPPOSES TEACHERS WHO ARE MARRIED

NEW YORK, July 26.—A letter from Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president emeritus of Harvard University, with reference to the case of Mrs. Bridget C. Polsonio, public school teacher, accused of neglect of duty in absenting herself from school to bear a child, was made public yesterday by Thomas W. Churchill, president of the Board of Education.

The letter reads:

Ashton, Me., July 16, 1913.

Dear Sir—I have read the papers signed by you on the employment of married women in the public schools, issued from the hall of the Board of Education of New York City, June 19, 1913, and agree in general with its conclusion.

In my opinion the employment of married women in the schools is not for the interest of the pupils, the teachers, or the community as a whole. Furthermore, I believe that it is not for the interest of the community that young women should in practice remain as teachers more than five years on the average. Within that time the great majority of normal school graduates can make an ample return for their education at public expense. To this practice there would always be valuable exceptions.

It follows from these premises that the proportion of male teachers in the public schools should be increased, wherever the necessary cost.

Sincerely yours,

CHARLES W. ELIOT.

FIND ROXBURY BOY DIED FROM RARE DISEASE

Inspector James Dennessey of police headquarters is busy today summoning witnesses to appear at the inquest into the death of eleven-year-old John J. Sweeney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sweeney, who died suddenly at his home at No. 51 Judson street, Roxbury, from a rare and peculiar disease known to the medical world as "status lymphaticus."

Doctors say a sudden shock or fright is liable to cause death to persons suffering from this disease. One theory today is that the Sweeney boy, who died in bed, was frightened in a dream.

The boy was at first believed to have died from injuries he received when struck in the head by a brick thrown by one of his playmates, but the real cause was revealed in an autopsy by Medical Examiner Leary.

"Status lymphaticus" was discovered by a physician in Germany in 1903. The first case ever recorded in Boston was that of a boy who went to the Massachusetts General Hospital in 1905 to have a cut on his knee treated. Washing out the wound caused the boy so much pain it was decided to give him ether and he died on the operating table. A post mortem examination revealed a peculiar condition of the lymph glands similar to the case in Germany.

'HOME RULE' OF NEW HAVEN IN ELLIOTT PLAN

Howard Elliott, who assumes the presidency of the New Haven Railroad on September 1, is on his way to Dublin, N. H., today, for a week-end visit to his family, after which he plans to go to St. Paul to wind up his affairs as head of the Northern Pacific and then plunge into the work of reorganizing the New Haven, with his headquarters in Boston.

"I shall give the best that is in me to the work, but I cannot do it alone, and must ask the loyal support of all," Mr. Elliott says. He declares his motto will be that of Edward Everett Hale, to "Look forward and not back," and to "Lend a hand." He promises and calls for loyal work "to help the advancement of a greater New England and her interests of which her railroads are most essential part."

"Home rule" of New Haven subsidiaries is promised under the new regime. This will mean the putting of many men on New Haven boards to represent the communities the various companies serve.

As the work of reorganization progresses, it is promised that the recommendations of the stockholders' protective committee, of which former Secretary of the Navy Meyer was the head, will be followed in the main, although nothing is said about letting the trolley and steamboat holdings go.

Pass Over Prouty Report.

J. P. Morgan declares, in a New York interview, that the recent report of the Interstate Commerce Commission criticising the New Haven, particularly as to its ownership of trolley lines, was "informally discussed, but passed over," at the meeting which elected Mr. Elliott.

While Mr. Elliott would not admit he had any plans in view in regard to meeting these criticisms, it is believed the future policy of the New Haven will be administered with a view, in some respects at least, to adjusting its affairs to the views of the commission.

The reorganization plan, it is announced, will take the following lines:

From October, each division of the New Haven transportation service will have a separate executive head, responsible to Elliott as chairman of the Board of Directors, an office to be created.

Each division of the service will have a Board of Directors, drawn in considerable part from the territory which that branch serves; the Boston & Maine Railroad will have Boston and Maine directors, and the Connecticut trolley lines will be left to men particularly interested and particularly qualified in this territory.

The company will join the New England Governors' conference in an effort to secure uniformity of laws affecting issues of securities.

Conservative and constructive lines will be followed in development.

Benjamin Campbell is the man now expected to follow Mr. Elliott in the presidency of the New Haven. But Mr. Elliott as chairman of the Board will have entire control of the operation of the road and will direct its policies.

The stockholders' committee, in their letter to the directors, said, in part:

"We recommend that the two principal railroad corporations from the New York, New Haven & Hartford Company and the Boston & Maine Railroads, the steamship and the trolley lines, shall be actually operated by presidents, one for each system, who shall be men of practical experience, who shall have full responsibility for the operation of their respective properties, and with whom the public may deal directly; and that local officers and proper local operating staffs shall be provided.

Call for Home Rule.

"We recommend that as chairman of the Board of Directors of the New Haven Company there shall be selected a person other than the above mentioned presidents, who has the board executive experiences, and who will inspire the public and the shareholders with confidence that the future policies will be founded and carried out on conservative and constructive lines.

"We recommend that the boards of directors of the New Haven Company and of the Boston & Maine Railroad shall include a sufficient number of influential residents of the several States in which the properties are situated adequately to represent the interests of the communities served.

President Mellen broke the silence he has maintained since his resignation by dictating the following statement:

"Mr. Mellen has, long ago, decided to send in his resignation, uniformly declined to give an interview to the press, and he has not done so in any instance up to the present time, except through the executive assistant of the company, announcing the simple fact of his resignation. Mr. Mellen has stated that he will pursue this course hereafter, and begs to be excused from answering any questions affecting his connection with the New Haven road or his own personal movements after September 1, 1913, when his term of office will expire.

"Mr. Mellen has known Mr. Elliott a great many years, appreciates him very highly, and hopes that all his friends and acquaintances will give him their undivided support and loyalty. He will himself do anything he can at all times to contribute to Mr. Elliott's or the company's success. Mr. Mellen hopes for Mr. Elliott a successful administration, and will be greatly disappointed if any other is in store for him."

Order Inquiry on Railroad Bonds

Will Investigate New York Central & Hudson River Proposed Issue.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—An investigation of the proposed bond issue by the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company was ordered today by the Interstate commerce commission in compliance with a Senate resolution calling for the facts about the proposed issue. The New York Central proposed to issue 4 per cent. mortgage bonds amounting to $107,102,400 for the purpose of taking up outstanding 3½ per cent. bonds now existing against the railroad, and to take up the stock of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern railroad.

Priest Urges Ban On Barnyard Music

Says Dropping of Ragtime Would End Present Day "Trots."

Bunny hops, tangoes, turkey trots and their accompanying rag time music should be eliminated for they have lowered the music standard of America immeasurably, according to the Rev. Michael J. Scanlan, director of the Diocesan Catholic Charitable Bureau. He says the United States is perilously near accepting the "rag time" for its song and dance tradition.

Rag time, he declares, is objectionable, and has resulted in dances unsuited to respectable people. For that reason, he urges that musicians refuse to play tunes to which the different "trots" may be danced.

Father Scanlan says:

"What is really needed is a change in the character of the music played at dancing parties. Let the demand go out to the publishers for a higher class of compositions. The objectionable music so much in demand at present can not be made to suit respectable people. Indeed, it was really planned to suit the lower creatures of the barnyard species and their like.

Jail Baker Who Refused Jury Work

Considered His Dough More Important Than Court.

CLEVELAND, O., July 26.—Jacob Rapp, a baker, was in jail today because he figured the necessity of baking 100 loaves of bread to be greater than serving as a juror in Judge Cull's court. Rapp did jury duty yesterday morning. When the noon recess came he informed the court that he could not come back in the afternoon because he had rising dough ready to bake bread. The court warned him to come back or be jailed. He did not appear. He was hailed to court, fined $25 and costs and sent to jail when he failed to pay.

EDDIE MACK WANTS TO BET $500 EGAN CAN BEAT MURPHY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

PILGRIMS OPEN SERIES WITH CUBS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Maybe Jeff Didn't Hold His Thumb Right — By "Bud" Fisher

Mack Posts $250 for Battle at Atlas A. A.

Eddie Willing to Wager $500 Eagan Can Defeat Murphy or Gallant

By JACK CONWAY.

EDDIE MACK, the hustling manager of Joe Eagan, the skilful South Boston boxer, has posted $250 with the writer to bind a match with the winner of the Eddie Murphy-Gilbert Gallant bout which will be staged at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday evening. Mack says that he will post $250 more as soon as his first deposit is covered by the victor of next week's battle.

Mack declares that he wants the the entire $500 to go as a side bet. He is sure that Eagan is able to vanquish either Murphy or Gallant.

There is no string attached to Mack's ded. He is willing to match Eagan with either Murphy or Gallant on the same conditions that these two men will fight, namely, twelve rounds to a decision and at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Eddie Murphy recently declared that he was willing to wager $500 that he could defeat any boxer of his weight in New England. The South Boston boxer wanted to put up $500 with the writer but I refused to hold the money as there was no club promoting shows in Boston at that time and as a result it would have been impossible for any boxer to meet Murphy.

From where I sit it looks as though the next move is up to the admirers of either Murphy or Gallant, according to whether the South Boston whirlwind or the rugged Brite Chelsea fighter breezes in a winner in their "go" at the Atlas Club.

MURPHY ANXIOUS TO WIN.

MURPHY will try and convince Boston fight "fans" that he has "come back" when he clashes with Gallant. A year ago the South Boston lightweight was considered one of the best boxers of his weight in the world. Eddie then met Matty Baldwin at the Arena, and although he was awarded a draw with the Charlestown "bearcat," he was punished badly around the body. Murphy made 135 pounds for Baldwin and this, of course, sapped his strength.

Shortly afterwards the Peninsular favorite fought Jack Britton and was knocked out in eleven rounds. Many of the wise men declared that Eddie had shot his bolt. But they were mistaken.

Murphy took a long rest and when he invaded the West was at his best again. He easily defeated Harry Trendall in St. Louis and gave Jack Britton the fight of his life at Kenosha. Two of the Chicago papers declared Murphy the winner over Britton, while two more gave him a draw.

GALLANT FIGHTING STRONG.

EDDIE now wants to show Boston fistic lovers that he is better than ever. He will weigh 135 pounds at 3 o'clock for Gallant and as a consequence should be at his best when he enters the ring.

Gallant, however, is certain to give Murphy a hard battle. He is not as clever as his rival, but a stronger and a far better infighter. Both men are eager to gain the decision, as the winner has been promised a date with Joe Eagan.

The two six-round preliminary bouts should be crowded with action. Joe Budreau will meet Dan Smiley, and if he wins he plans to seek another bout with Mickey Brown. The contest between Peter De Luca and "Young" Kennedy has also aroused considerable interest.

Charley Sheppard of New York and Harry Dillon of Philadelphia will clash in another six-round whirl.

COULON TO TAKE REST.

JOHNNY COULON has gone to the country for a long rest. The leading bantamweights, however, are not parading the streets of our big cities crying "Hooray, Hooray," as the poor abused husband is supposed to do when Friend Wife goes on her vacation.

The bantamweight "champion" was recently discharged from a Chicago hospital, where he went after his ten-round bout with Frankie Burns. When Coulon stepped out of the ring after his "go" with Burns, he weighed only 106 pounds, while he now scales at 116 pounds.

The Chicago boxer says that he will not start training again until the first of September, and that he will be ready to enter the ring by the latter part of September. Johnny may then agree to meet "Kid" Williams or Eddie Campi on the Pacific Coast.

Williams was presented with a belt by Tom McCarey for defeating Charley Ledoux. McCarey stated that it was a championship belt, but his statement is a joke. Why should any boxer be declared world's bantamweight champion merely because he defeated a French boxer who, although game and aggressive knows hardly anything about the art of self-defence?

MCAREY ACTED UNFAIRLY.

WE have never considered Coulon a real champion, but in justice to Johnny, we do not think that McCarey acted fairly when he gave Williams a belt when Coulon was confined to his bed in a Chicago hospital. McCarey was probably vexed because Coulon was unfortunately stricken with a nervous breakdown and forced to call off his bout with Williams, which was scheduled to take place at McCarey's club at Vernon.

Williams is a great boxer, but nobody will ever recognize him as a champion until after he has beaten Coulon. Coulon has won the majority of his important bouts by making his opponents reduce to 116 pounds. There are few boxers who can make this weight and still be able to give a good account of themselves in the ring.

SHEVLIN'S CONDITION IMPROVED.

EDDIE SHEVLIN, the Roxbury boxer, who has been ill with pneumonia, is on the road to recovery. We will all be glad when Eddie is able to join the regulars at the "I" street baths, and at the Cabot street gymnasium. There are few young men in the boxing game who are as well liked and respected as Shevlin. He has always lived a clean life, and the fruits of his good work were shown in his recent illness, when his strong constitution enabled him to push aside the grim hand of Death.

CHANCE FOR COLLEGE 'GRADS.'

EXTRA! Extra! "Gunboat" Smith will meet Jim Flynn in a ten-round bout in New York next month for the white heavyweight championship of the world. Tis, indeed, a sad state of affairs in the heavyweight boxing division when a big, awkward fellow like Smith can battle a broken-down veteran like Flynn for a "title."

Moral.—College graduates should learn how to box instead of trying to become bank presidents, as a crude, raw-boned fighter with an alleged punch can make more money in a single evening than the average college graduate can earn in a year or two.

"Dutch" Bold May Play with Red Sox

"Dutch" Bold, Everett High's hard-hitting first baseman, had a conference with President McAleer of the Red Sox at Fenway Park yesterday, but won't certain but he wishes to pass up a college career to play baseball. McAleer advised him to think the matter over, consult with his father, and then let him know what he will do.

Bold practiced with the Red Sox previous to the game yesterday. He worked at first base and made a very good impression.

WHERE PLAYED — R H E

BATTERIES—

RAY COLLINS TO FACE WHITE SOX IN SECOND GAME

The second meeting in the series between the Red and White Sox will take place at Fenway Park this afternoon. This being the regular half-holiday an unusually large crowd of "fans" are expected to attend the game, many of whom will have their first peek at Bill Carrigan in the roll of manager.

Those who saw Bill's debut were really pleased. He made good right off the reel. That the players have confidence in Bill to be successful was clearly demonstrated by their peppery work. Every member of the team is working hard and harmony reigns supreme.

Collins May Pitch.

Well, to get back to today's game, it looks as though Ray Collins will do the twirling. Collins was given an agreeable surprise when Bedient was able to work in the first game, as it gave him a good chance to rest up after the long jaunt from Cleveland.

Collins is in good shape just now and twirling a big class article of ball. His work on the Western trip is proof enough. The tall Vermont boy has not pitched since Sunday, when he gave the Naps a cute trimming, and with proper backing he should be able to take a fall out of Chicago today.

Manager Callahan will probably send "Hebe" Russell, the Texas Wonder of the White Sox outfit, to the mound. Russell was used for several innings in yesterday's game, but the Carrigan s took kindly to his curves and pounded him so hard that Manager "Jeems" finally decided to yank him out and save him for today. Callahan is none too strong in the pitching department on this trip, as he left three of his veterans behind him. These are "Big Ed" Walsh, whom many are inclined to believe is through, "Doc" White and Bill Lange.

Janvrin Playing Well.

Russell is one man whom President McAleer wants to see his Red Sox beat. So far the "Rebel" has it on the Red Sox chief. Out in Chicago, during the Red Sox's last visit there, McAleer was sure that Russell would be defeated but much to his surprise the young lefty turned the tables. President McAleer's only alibi was, well until next time, as it remains to be seen what the Sox can do to the youngster's curves today.

If Harold Janvrin continues to get up the article of ball that he displayed yesterday, it looks as though Steve Yerkes will be forced to warm the bench a little longer than he first expected to. Janvrin played a brilliant fielding game, getting eight of nine chances. The error marked against him was a questionable one and many were of the opinion that it should have been scored a hit. Besides playing a fine game in the field, Janvrin also showed up well with the stick, getting in two fine hits.

White Sox Let Out Gaines.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 26.—Mc... Holland of the St. Joseph, Western League, team, has closed a deal whereby Pitcher Gaines of the Chicago Americans is to join the St. Joseph team August 1.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 26.—The Boston Pilgrims begin their second western invasion today in a series of games with the Cubs. This stretch of games will be practically a continuance of where the two teams left off in Boston, for it was only last Monday that they battled together in the Hub.

The Pilgrims pulled in here last night, and with the exception of Bill Rariden, who is nursing a sore finger, everyone was in tip-top shape. The injury to Rariden's finger will not keep him out of many games, however, as Trainer Jimmy Neary has assured him it is only slight.

The Cubs will present a changed appearance in local parks, as they will be togged out in brand new uniforms. The old ones were burned in a laundry fire here, and for a time it looked as though Evers' men would have to be content with the road outfit.

"Hub" Perdue is carded to pitch for the Pilgrims today. He will be opposed by Larry Cheney.

NILES BEATEN BY GARDNER AT LONGWOOD

G. F. Gardner, Jr., went through to a finalists' position in the Eastern singles tennis championship by defeating no lesser light than N. W. Niles, the present Massachusetts singles titleholder, at Longwood this morning. Niles started well, taking the first set after it had gone to deuce twice, in 8—6, but from then on Gardner seemed to gain speed, with the result that he took the next three sets necessary to win the match in 6—1, 6—2, 6—3.

Rather strangely Gardner seems to have Niles' "goat" carefully tied to his watch chain, as this is the third time in the past year that Gardner has polished off the present singles champion of Massachusetts.

Gardner put Niles out of the running at Longwood last Spring, again in the summer at Newport, and his win this morning makes his third important victory.

Niles' rating and general versatility made him the favorite in this morning's match, so that the outcome was a big surprise to many of the local followers of tennis.

Niles' service, which has proved the stumbling block for more than one player the past week, was fathomed and returned regularly by Gardner, and he showed that he also had "some" service himself, as the redoubtable Niles was at a loss to know how to handle the shots that Gardner walloped from the back line.

Gardner's victory gives him the right to meet either Clothier or Johnston in the final. This latter match was played this afternoon.

Americans Meet Britons at Tennis

WIMBLEDON, Eng., July 26.—With the count one and one the English and American lawn tennis teams today met in the double matches to gain the vantage point in the play for the Davis cup.

The American contingent is much disappointed over the defeat of Maurice E. McLoughlin, of whom so much was expected in the singles match yesterday with J. C. Parke. The young Californian had already defeated Parke in the open tennis matches last month, and his defeat was entirely unexpected.

Both matches yesterday were so hard fought that the betting today is at even money and take your pick. Each game yesterday required five sets to bring out a winner, and when play was over in the second match, R. Norris Williams, of Philadelphia, had crossed up the score by defeating C. P. Dixon.

Today's doubles will be between McLoughlin and Harold H. Hackett, against Dixon and H. Roper Barrett.

Boston Golfer Gotham Finalist

NEW YORK, July 26.—Semi-final and final rounds of match play were run off in the last day of the tournament in the Carpet Trade Golf Association over the Salisbury links near Garden City, with the result that H. B. Richmond of Boston won the championship trophy for the third successive year. He defeated J. L. Perkins of Chicago in the decisive test by the narrow margin of 1 up. The champion found it necessary to go to the 19th hole in the semi-final against J. R. Shaff of New York, a former title holder. Perkins advanced through defeating J. W. Falling of New York by the comfortable margin of 5 up and 4 to play. R. H. Toby, the Nassau veteran, who fell before Richmond in the first match round, succeeded in winning the consolation division of the first set through vanquishing J. Fitzgerald of this city, 3 up and 2 to play.

Old Sox Pitcher Trims Brooklyns

TROY, N. Y., July 26.—The Troy team of the New York State League defeated Brooklyn of the National League in an exhibition game with a batting rally in the ninth inning by the score of 2 to 1. George Winters, formerly with Boston and Detroit, pitched winning ball for the locals.

$20,000 Paid for Good Polo Mount

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 26.—Godfrey H. Reede has sent a fine polo pony, bred in Texas, to an English player, Morris Kingscote, of Hurlingham, Eng., who is said to have paid $20,000 for the mount.

Yale Tennis Star Defeats Allen Behr

NEW YORK, July 26.—Alrick H. Man, Jr., the Yale lawn tennis captain and recent winner of the New England championship, came to the front for the opening of the annual tournament at the Edgemere Club. After scoring his first round byeball by default, he defeated Allen H. Behr by 6—2, 6—8, 6—4.

Essex Finals Today.

MANCHESTER BY-THE-SEA, July 26.—In the concluding match in the second round of the tennis tournament in mixed doubles at the Essex County Club Mrs. Oakes Ames and Preston Gibson defeated Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby and J. L. Hall, Jr., 6—4, 6—4. The finals are to be played today between Mrs. Ames and P. Gibson vs. Mrs. S. F. Breuer and E. C. Fitz.

Watson-Burns Matched.

OAKLAND, Cal., July 26.—Fred Watson and Frankie Burns, California lightweights, have been matched to box ten rounds at the Wheelman's Club here, on August 12. Burns recently stopped Watson in the ninth round of a twenty-round bout.

Newton Girl Is the Champion Baseball Player

Leslie Perkins Rival of Joe Wood and Ty Cobb

THREE POSES MADE FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN OF LESLIE PERKINS, WONDERFUL GIRL BALL PLAYER.

WILEY DEFENDS TITLE IN HOUR RACE AT REVERE

The Brassard race, scheduled for tonight at the Revere Cycle Track, has attracted much attention, as hour races have not been numerous this season. George Wiley, the champion, is the proud owner of the shield, which carries with it $5 per day until the holder is defeated, and the race tonight is the result of a challenge of Jimmy Moran of Chelsea. The other starters will be Julius Rudolphe of France and Bob Finlay of Australia.

Wile many believe that the race will be between Wiley and Moran there are others who think that Rudolphe is liable to spet the calculations. Rudolphe has been getting a lot of work and every body has him in better condition than the previous one.

If he is right, the one-hour distance should not trouble him, as he is a great man in Europe at 100 kilometers, 62½ miles, which is considerably more than will be covered tonight. Bob Finlay, the Australian is another who is used to the long road, but as he has been here but a short time it is doubtful if he can stand the pace set by his opponents for city minutes.

Fred White, well known as a pacemaker years ago, is back after being away from the motors for four years. White will ride tonight. Jimmy Hunter, Charles Stein and Charles Libbey will try and break the two-mile track record for a motorcycle.

Catcher Agnew in Serious Condition

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Samuel Agnew, catcher for the St. Louis Americans, was in a serious condition today, the result of having been hit by a pitched ball in the game with Washington. He suffers from concussion of the brain and a bone broken under his left eye.

Agnew was at the bat in the fourth inning when a shoot thrown by Engel, the Washington pitcher, made a sharp break and came in too fast for Agnew to get out of the way. He was attended to by doctors in the clubroom and will be out of the game for the next three weeks.

Girl Pitcher Has Yet to Lose a Game; Is Also a Great Batter

With a batting average that would make Ty Cobb and Heinie Zimmerman envious, and with a pitching record that would cause Walter Johnson of Joe Wood to feel like bush leaguers, Newton's pet, Leslie Perkins, captain and manager of the West Newton girls' baseball team, claims the girls baseball championship of the country.

As a stick worker this fair phenomenon is almost 100 per cent. perfection, for it is an off day with her that she does not get a hit every time at bat. But it is as a twirler that she has earned the nickname of "the girl wonder of Newton." Miss Perkins has yet to lose a game.

Was Not Defeated Last Year.

Leslie was the sole pitcher last year of the Newton Lower Falls Girls' Club. Throughout the season this team played a game every week with some other feminine nine and ended the season without having once been defeated. Any way member of the Falls nine for an account of the victories and she will proudly point to Miss Perkins. "She did it," the players will say. "She is nineteenths of the team."

This year a league was formed through the efforts of Ernst Hermann, the director of the playgrounds. Almost every association in the Garden City entered a team. Leslie Perkins heads the West Newton nine as captain and manager, and won the first game of the season last Friday, defeating the Newton Highlands girls 20 to 17.

Explaining this game, the West Newton captain-manager—like all star baseball players—made a few excuses. "Of course," she said, "we easily won the game, but believe me I felt a little shaky when I 'went up in the air' in the last inning."

She lays this to the fact that the teams played with a soft ball whereas she is used to pitching with a regular league ball. "You know," she added, "the Newton Highland girls were afraid to play with a hard baseball for fear of getting hit with it. While I, not being familiar with a soft one, could not put the twists into my deliveries."

Attends Big League Games.

However, Leslie is practicing daily with both a soft and hard sphere that she may become proficient in twirling either.

Miss Perkins attends many of the major league games and tries to copy the style of the highly paid box artists. Joe Wood of the Red Sox is her favorite pitcher, and it is his throws that she tries chiefly to imitate.

She showed an AMERICAN reporter how to curve a ball, either in, out or under, and the scribe was astonished at her mastery of the art. For her delivery she holds the ball exactly as does the chief pitcher of the Boston champions, and the wrist twist, characteristic of him, can be done by Leslie almost to perfection.

The West Newton girl has always acknowledged baseball her favorite pastime. According to her mother, when she was younger, she would rather join the boys who were playing ball than play with her girl friends with dolls. Besides being proficient at baseball, the girl is a tennis player and swimmer of no small merit.

She is the daughter of the late Dr. Henry P. Perkins and lives with her mother and two brothers at No. 379 Austin street, West Newton. She is a sophomore in the Newton Classical High School and is exceedingly smart in her studies. Leslie's mother has mapped out a professional career for her daughter, but according to the fair ball fiend, she has only one ambition. That is to captain a team such as the Boomer Girls or the New York Lady Giants.

Hall Meets Strachan for Clay-Court Title

OMAHA, Neb., July 26.—Merrill Hall, New York, and John Strachan, San Francisco, won their matches in the semi-finals and today will play for the singles championship of the fourth national clay court tennis tournament. Hall beat Clarence Griffin, San Francisco, 2—6, 6—4, 7—5, 12—10, while Strachan defeated Fred Harris, Brattleboro, Vt., 5—7, 6—2, 7—5, 6—4.

Harris became ill at the close of his first set and because of his indisposition the matches in doubles were postponed until today.

Swimmers to Meet at North End Park

A district swimming meet will be held at North End Park today. About 100 entries have already been received, and the winners will qualify for the interdistrict and final meets to be held under the auspices of the Park and Recreation Department later in the season.

Games will be in charge of Instructor James F. Winston, assisted by John Driscoll, William Mullen and Joseph Brennan, instructors from other beaches.

Keen rivalry exists in many of the events, especially the girls' diving contests and boys' 100 and 440-yard dashes.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

SILK STOCKINGS MAY BE WORN IN BASEBALL

Hey, boys, what's the very latest thing in silk stockings?

Nope, you're wrong—It's baseball.

Yep, baseball players are wearing silk sox, at least in New Bedford.

From the Whaling City comes an entertaining yarn of a newspaper editor (New Bedford editor), who formed a baseball team and elected himself pitcher. He came into the box wearing a pair of silk stockings which his wife had bought for herself and you can bet that Friend Wife never knew that Hubby had borrowed the "silkies."

The editor-pitcher hurled air-tight ball, won the game and was the admiration of all for his appearance in both the box and the sox.

The sox were white—when they were bought. What color they were when the editor arrived home and what Mrs. Editor said to him are not contained in the dispatches.

Tesreau and Hendrix May Figure in Trade

PITTSBURGH, July 26.—Friends in the confidence of Manager Clarke of the Pittsburgh Pirates circulated a report that he will in a few days trade Pitcher Claude Hendrix to the New York Giants for Pitcher Jeff Tesreau and Third Baseman Shafer. Clarke is silent as to the report, and President Dreyfuss, while not admitting the deal, did not deny it very strenuously.

The trade is said to have been pending for some time. But fans are at a loss to determine why Hendrix, one of the best pitchers in the National League, should go.

Dundee Matched to Box Jack White

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 26.—A twenty-round bout has been arranged between Johnnie Dundee, erst while featherweight of New York, and Jack White, the Chicago lightweight. The boys will meet in the Vernon A. C. arena on the night of August 12.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. G. MITCHELL

IT was fine to see the Red Sox win, of course. But if they had lost that first game to the white legs I believe no one would have complained. Manager Bill Carrigan's men performed with enthusiasm, spirit and nerve, and when a team does that the performance covers a multitude of baseball sins. It was a pleasure to see them cavort on the diamond. There were errors, to be sure. But errors have always been a part of the game and always will be a part of the game. No one objects to errors unless they are of the stupid variety or are made when the team is playing lazy ball. The errors charged against the Red Sox in this morning's box scores were, however, on hard hit balls and all of them were more or less excusable; in fact, the scorers communed one with another as to whether Jonvrin should be charged with a misplay.

GINGER, pepper, mustard and all other ingredients that go to make up a winning baseball combination were in evidence throughout the Red Sox ranks (and among the White Sox, too, for that matter). Steve Yerkes, although laid off temporarily on account of his fight hitting, did not sulk in his tent, but was out on the third-base coaching lines yelling and generating his teammates every time they took a turn at bat. This is the proper spirit and if it continues the old friends of the Red Sox, will rally to their support whether they win or lose. Only show the "fans" the team is trying its best and the "fans" will do their part.

IT was the first appearance here this year of Umpires Silk O'Loughlin and Veteran Jack Sheridan. Silk worked behind the plate and Jack took care of the base decisions. The latter looked more spry and in better form than for several years. Silk gave a good account of himself behind the plate. His decision on Engle in the eighth looked correct from the press stand. Schalk made what appeared to be a seamless kick and propelled himself from the game by so doing. The words he addressed to Silk were too biting to pass unnoticed and at the umpire's urgent request the catcher retired to the dressing room and Kuhn took his place.

WE had about everything except a balk and a double play in the game. There was a home run, a triple, a double or two, the knocking of pitchers out of the box, a nip and tuck battle, stolen bases (mostly by our side) the throwing out of would-be stealers of bases (mostly by our catcher), a darling, but successful attempt to steal home, the proper amount of errors and several swell plays. The battle was fought at high speed all the way and was one of the best games of the year to watch.

OUR old friend, Eddie Cicotte, who has been making trouble for the Red Sox all the year, finally got his bumps. Our boys started right in on him and although they didn't score a safe hit until the second inning it was dollars to doughnuts they would take his measure before the game was half ended. And they did. In the second Duffy Lewis plastered a mild whack up against the left field banking, but was out trying for second, the ball rolling kindly for the White Sox. Then, after Gardner had fouled out, Engle drove a liner between Ping and Collins and before they could get the ball back to the plate the clunky Clyde slid safely over it. Cicotte got by in the third, but in the fourth singles by Lewis and Engle, into which was sandwiched a corking double by Larry Gardner, and a kind fumble by Cicotte himself, yielded two runs.

IN the fifth some more singles sent Cicotte to the stable, he leaving the bases choked. "Lefty" Bertie Russell came in to stem the tide. Gardner slammed a curve-ball to right for a single and then Bertie uncorked an uncivilized pitch, all of which, with a poor check by Schalk, netted three tallies for the Carrigans. Bertie lasted long enough to allow Engle to pop to Chase and then Callahan gently broke the news that his services would not be required for the rest of the afternoon. Bertie finished out and did quite well, but the Carrigans put a run over on him in the eighth for good measure.

TWICE in the game the White Sox led the race, but twice the Red Sox caught up and once the home team passed the visitors. Once was enough.

CALLAHAN'S band includes several former members of the Red Sox. Among them are Cicotte, Buck O'Brien, Harry Lord and Fournier. The latter never wore a Boston uniform, but he was dug up from the Twilight League by Red Sox scouts (not the name and was released by the locals in 1912.

IS Big Ed Walsh all in? Have we seen the last of the celebrated twirler who used to win nine games out of ten when he pitched against the Red Sox. Big Ed is not with the White Sox this trip. He has not done much this year. Some say his arm is sore. Walsh himself denies this. But he doesn't seem to be able to tell what the trouble is. Alibis have been exhausted. There is an impression in the Windy City that he will never be himself again. But he is of rugged constitution and when he gets a renewed supply of saltra he may be seen in the box once more, lame arm or no lame arm.

BILL LATHROP, the right-handed pitcher from Notre Dame University, joins the Callahan tribe today. If the Red Sox keep on hammering the ball the way they did yesterday Mr. Lathrop may be forced into harness before the present series ends.

MANAGER BILL set the pace from the standpoint of ginger. The old warhorse essayed to catch and right nobly did he perform. Right at the start two high fouls were popped up at him. Where was a brisk wind blowing, but Williams wasn't fooled by it. He caught the fouls with elegance, grace and a big mit.

BASEBALL CHATTER

It took thirteen innings and the best slugger in either league to defeat the Yankees. Jackson's double sending Chapman over the plate with the winning run. The Naps would not have won had Gossett not made one when trying to score on a wild pitch instead of going into the plate standing up.

* * *

Two singles which bounded off Dubuc's glove prevented the Detroit pitcher from holding the Athletic hitless. The scratch hits came in the seventh inning, but Mack's men took advantage of them and aided by errors piled up the only runs scored in the game.

* * *

For fifteen innings the Senators and Browns battled to a tie, darkness putting an end to the contest. Baumgardner, Engel and Hughes were chased from the mound early in the game, and then the game developed into a pitcher's battle not for Walter Johnson. The demon pitcher of the Senators struck out sixteen men in the eleven innings he was on the mound.

* * *

Nine bases on balls, two hit batsmen, three wild pitches and eight hits enabled the Pirates to win an easy victory over the Phillies. Outfielder Carey did not get a hit in five times up, but scored five runs. He reached first the first time up on a fumble and was walked the other four times.

* * *

Even minor league teams are rubbing it in on Brooklyn. The Bushers dropped off at Troy to play an exhibition game and the State league team with a batting rally in the final inning won out.

* * *

Pitcher Elmer Brown of the Montgomery team was sold to Brooklyn for $7,000. The money will be divided with the St. Louis Americans, who had an option on the player.

* * *

Another minor league will be seen in fast company. The Cleveland team bought First Baseman Dick Staley from the Evansville club for $2,500.

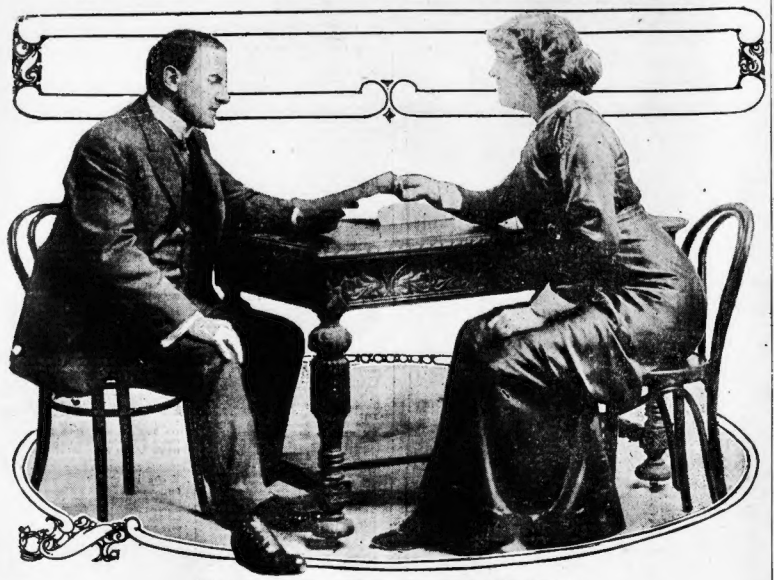
Behind Closed Doors

One of the Greatest Mystery Stories Ever Written

BY ANNA KATHERINE GREEN

MRS. GRETOREX TELLS THE DETECTIVE OF HER DAUGHTER'S DISAPPEARANCE.



"It is this note that causes our dilemma," said Mrs. Gretorex.

(Posed for the Boston American by Annabelle Dennison and Harrison Brockbank)

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

It is the wedding day of Dr. Walter Cameron. He is to be married at 8 o'clock that evening to Genevieve Gretorex, a beautiful society girl. At 4 o'clock Dr. Cameron is called upon in his office by Ebenezar Gryce, a member of the New York detective force. He astounds Dr. Cameron by telling him that Miss Gretorex has been missing for several days. Gryce says that the girl's mother requested his services in the hunt for her daughter, and showed him a note in which Miss Gretorex declared she would be back in time for the ceremony. Dr. Cameron is greatly distressed. Gryce is continuing his story concerning his interview with Mrs. Gretorex.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT.

"'On the twenty-seventh,' " But she says she will be back?'

"That does not comfort me.'

"'You think she will not come?'

"'I have no hope that she will.'

"This acknowledgement was uttered with emphasis. There seemed to be but one conclusion to draw.

"'Your daughter wishes to escape her engagement?'

"The answer was less emphatic than before. In fact it expressed doubt.

"'I do not know, sir; my daughter is not herself, has not been for some time. My husband and myself have both noticed it; but we never anticipated her taking any such extreme action as this. Where has she gone? What will become of her? How can we face the world? How can we tell her lover?'

"'Then you think—'

"'That she is laboring under a temporary aberration of mind, caused perhaps by the excitement of the last few weeks; that she is not responsible for her acts; that she may be anywhere, remote or near; and that we may wait till the hour set for her marriage is past without seeing her.'

"To this I could make but one reply: 'Then why not take her lover into your confidence, inform him of your fears, and gain the benefit of his experience in your search for her?'

A MOTHER'S FEARS.

"The answer will astonish you.

"'Because we are very proud and he is very proud. To explain our fears we should be obliged to say much that it would be humiliating for us to utter and for him to hear. Besides, we may overrate the situation. She may come back, as she says she will, and, should this be the case, you will see for yourself what endless regret would follow any such confidences as you suggest.'

"But"—I began.

"'It is this note that causes our dilemma,' she interposed. 'With these lines before me I cannot act as if there were no hope of her returning in proper time to take her part in the ceremony. Yet I do not trust these lines, nor the promise she has made. Why, I can hardly say; for she has always been a woman of her word. But she is not herself, of that I am convinced.'

"This repetition of her former assertion made it easy for me to inquire what special change she had perceived in her daughter to lead to such a conclusion. She evidently found it difficult to reply.

"'I cannot put it into words,' she declared. 'I feel the change.'

"'And how long have you felt it?'

"'Not long; since we began active preparations for her wedding, I think.'

"'And has no one else observed it?'

"'I cannot say. I should think her lover would.'

"'Why?'

"'Because it has been in reference to him she has shown her peculiarities strongest. For weeks she has received him only on sufferance, and for the last few days has more than once absolutely refused to see him.'

"'And what reasons did she assign for this?'

"'Follies. Fatigue, caprice, a letter to write, a dressmaker to see—anything that came into her head.'

"'Yet she went on preparing for her wedding?'

"'Certainly; her cards were out.'

"The tone in which this was said caused one to reflect. Though affable, kindly and even philanthropic in her dealings toward the world at large, Mrs. A. is, as everyone knows, a woman who would find it very difficult to infringe upon any of the laws of society. Having seen her daughter pledge herself to a man of suitable pretensions, she would consider such a pledge final if only because she could not face the talk and scandal that would follow a rupture. Influenced by this idea, I remarked:

"'You must be perfectly frank with me if you want me to help you at this crisis. Has your daughter, or has she not, expressed a wish to break her engagement?'

"She asked me once if I thought it too late for her to do so. Of course there was but one reply to this, and she said no more. But,' the poor mother continued hastily, 'that was only a symptom of flightiness. She has nothing against her lover, does not pretend to have.'

"'Only against marriage?'

"'Only against marriage.'

"'Mrs. A.,' I now boldly asked, 'do you think she loves the man you expect her to marry?'

"The answer came hesitatingly. 'She accepted his attentions with pleasure when they were first offered.'

"'Do you think she loves any other man?'

"The mother shrank back in dismay. 'I am sure she does not. How could she? There is not another such gentleman in our circle of acquaintance.'

"This was flattering to the gentleman, but not exactly satisfactory to me.

"'You know girls sometimes take strange whims.'

"'My daughter is not a girl, she is a woman.'

"This silenced me as it would you, sir, I have no doubt; and seeing the mother was really sincere in believing that her daughter's mind was temporarily affected, I inquired again as to what she had done or failed to do of late, and found that she had shunned the society of the members of her family, as well as that of her lover, finding her sole interest seemingly in the preparation of her wardrobe. To that she did attend,' said Mrs. A., 'and it was the only thing she did help me in. No hour was too late for her to see her dressmaker; no engagement too pressing for her to receive and fit on any of the new costumes that kept coming home. Indeed, she showed more than a bride's usual interest in such matters; and it is the one reason I have for not disputing you utterly when you say she may come back. She will want to see her dresses.'

"'Then she did not take them with her?'

"'She took nothing.'

"'What! not a trunk?'

"'Nothing; that is, nothing but a little hand satchel.'

"'How do you know this?'

"'We all saw her go out; she was in shopping costume.'

"'But she had money?'

"'I cannot say. Some, no doubt; but we found a large roll of bills in her drawer, and her father says it contains nearly all he had lately given her. I do not think her pocket-book held more than five dollars.'

A CLEW

"This was a point. Either the girl was going amongst friends, or she was really touched in her mind. To make sure that the first supposition was not true, I asked for a list of the houses which Miss A. was in the habit of visiting. Mrs. A. mentioned some half dozen, but added that her daughter's most intimate companion was in Europe and that she did not think she cared enough for the others to go to them at this time.

"'And she positively carried no baggage with her?'

"'None. I have looked her things over carefully, and find nothing missing. She did not even wear her diamonds.'

"'And her watch?'

"I felt troubled. I looked at the mother to ascertain what her real fears were. But they did not seem to be any worse than those she had expressed. Was she blind to the possibilities? I felt it my duty to repeat a former question.

"'Mrs. A.,' said I, 'I will try to find your child. The fact that she had too little money to go far from home will facilitate matters. But first I must be sure that there is no third party mixed up in this case and that party a gentleman. You are certain she was not secretly interested in some unknown person?'

"'I can only repeat her words,' replied the poor mother. 'The very last time I saw her (it was day before yesterday evening) she looked so feverish and acted so unlike herself that I ventured to ask her if she was sure she would not fall sick before her wedding day. She said with an unnatural laugh I hear ringing yet, "I have no idea of falling ill and I shall certainly not do so till after I have married the doctor."'

"'Did I say,' inquired the detective, pausing, 'that Miss A.'s lover was a doctor?'

This was too much for his uneasy auditor. Leaping to his feet, Dr. Cameron confronted the speaker and exclaimed hotly:

"You are playing with me. It is of my intended wife you are speaking, and you are amusing yourself with a long-drawn-out tale, when all I want to know is whether I am to find my bride at the altar when I go there, or whether I am to be made the victim of an outrageous scandal that will affect my whole future career. Don't you know that it is now half-past four and that at eight——'

"Softly," interrupted the other. "I am Ebenezer Gryce and I seldom go slow when I ought to go fast. If I take up your time by telling you a long-drawn-out tale it is because——'

But the doctor was in no mood for talk.

"Tell me," said he, "if Miss Gretorex has returned to her father's house."

"She has not."

"And they have not heard from her?"

The detective shook his head.

Dr. Cameron's mouth took a grim curve. "There is to be no wedding then, I see." Then as the other did not answer he took out into a harsh laugh and turned towards the window. "I will send and countermand the order for my carriage," he now dryly remarked.

Mr. Gryce advanced and touched him softly on the shoulder.

To Be Continued Monday.

How We Are Injured by Insects

Selected by EDWIN MARKHAM

Now that the year has swung around to vacation time, it is worth while to note what Dr. Woods Hutchinson has to say on the pests of country life. From Dr. Hutchinson's book, "Common Diseases," I gather the following for you:

"In most parts of the United States, during the season in which the weather permits one to sit out of doors with any comfort, life is rendered a burden by flies, gnats and mosquitoes unless behind the protection of screens.

"The real battle of the human species for the possession of the earth—nay, even for the right to exist upon its surface—must be fought, not with mammoths, but with mosquitoes; not with lions and tigers, but with flies and gnats; not with behemoths, but with bacilli.

"Our instinct to kill insects at sight is perfectly sound. Out of the quarter of a million species now known to science, a mere handful are even remotely helpful to man, and most of these only by their power of living upon other and more dangerous insects. On the other hand, thousands of species are actively hostile to man, to his food-plants and to his domestic animals. Whole tribes of men have been swept out of existence by the attack of insects carrying bacilli — as within the last two decades in Central Africa, by the dread 'sleeping sickness' carried by the tsetse fly. Whole nations have been wrenched and crippled and whole civilizations retarded by another insect-borne disease, malaria.

"Closer study of the habits of the mosquito during the past five years has brought out the curious and at first sight incredible fact that the majority of these insects which carry disease, such as the malarial mosquito, the yellow-fever mosquito and the house fly, can live and multiply, apparently, only in the immediate neighborhood of human habitations. In other words, they are literally domestic animals and part of our farm stock. This is absolutely true of the house fly and the yellow-fever mosquito, neither of which is ever found more than a mile or two, and usually not more than a few hundred yards, away from human habitations.

"Dangerous and deadly as the mosquitoes are, they are only 'middlemen,' distributors, common carriers of evils which they have picked up from outside sources. For the most part these outside sources are diseased or dirty human beings. So that we have really ourselves to thank for most of the damage they do.

"Yes," said the meek-looking man, "I've no doubt you've had some great hunting experiences in your travels abroad."

"I have indeed."

"Buffalo hunting—"

"Yes."

"And bear hunting—"

"Of course."

"Well, you just come round and let my wife take you house hunting and bargain hunting with her. Then you'll begin to know what real excitement is."

The late Sir W. S. Gilbert was inclined to be witty at the expense of the men and women who like to do amateur acting in the name of charity. An enthusiast once said to him:

"Mr. Gilbert, what do you think of our amateur club?"

"I think they are not so much a club as a bundle of sticks," returned the master of repartee.

When Sir Edward Carson's younger son, who has inherited his father's aptness of repartee, was "up" for the navy, he was asked by an examiner why he was not going to adopt his father's profession.

"I suppose I shall have to if I don't get through this," he replied.

The examiner passed him.

Boston Women Who Have Made Good

No. 5.—Mrs. Katharine L. Stevenson

KATHERINE L. STEVENSON.

Mrs. Katharine Lent Stevenson, State president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, is another of the many women who have made good.

For twenty-two years she has been urging better homes, better parents and better children. Educated to be a minister in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and a graduate of the Boston University School of Theology, she was refused ordination in that church because she was a woman. Not deterred by this she at once said to herself: "How can I make good in this world?"

She identified herself with the temperance cause and went to work quietly to bring about moral reforms. She found many homes and many lives cursed by intemperance. Today she has ten thousand women who are helping in the work of making reputable citizens. Then she:

Tells of 22 Years' Service.

I've seen twenty-two years' service in the cause of temperance. That simply means that with others I have tried to make better and brighter homes for many people.

It has been up-hill work. But the ten thousand women members of our organization have all great need to be happy.

Today we are studying the evil, not merely from the moral side, but also from the scientific side. It is no longer a moral question simply.

You ask me if we have made good in these many years? We are in a good cause, and we can't help but make good. You can't enter upon any work that is going to benefit the home life without some criticism, but we have lived to see many who first questioned our policy come to its defence.

Seeks Aid of All Women.

I have been in this work for so many years that I wish I could inspire all women of Massachusetts to do more of this kind of work. There is still so much to be done.

We want every child in New England to know something about its moral and physical care. If we can induce every woman in this State to do something in this line, we are making good.

Every woman can make good in a good cause. All she has to do is to stand up for the right. We are going forward. We see better homes in the future. We see great changes for the betterment of mankind.

Stolen Fruit Not Sweeter

A benevolent old man invited a number of small boys from the slums to spend a day at his beautiful old-world country home; and among the many good things which he provided for them was bountiful and wondrous feast of strawberries and cream.

As the day drew to a close, wishing to impress the lads with a lesson, their benefactor asked:

"Now, suppose, instead of being invited here to eat my strawberries, you had come and helped yourself and nobody was looking, would you have enjoyed the fruit so much?"

"No, sir."

"Ah! And why not?" asked the old gentleman, inspired with a new field in young Britain's honesty.

"'Cause," sir," came the sad but prompt reply, "we wouldn't 'ave 'ad no cream with 'em!"

Any One in New England Is Eligible to Enter the American's Great Picture Puzzle Contest

As the Puzzle Picture Contest heads on its way toward completion, the interest in it grows more and more intense.

The thousands of contestants who have been able to solve the picture puzzles as they have appeared day by day in the American have now become so used to this bit of pleasant exercise that they will actually miss it when the contest reaches an end.

The chances are that hundreds will take away with them a large store of useful knowledge gained from their daily consultation of the Guide. There is no reason why they should not. The three thousand or more proverbs in its pages contain much of the essence of the world's wisdom, and probably every one of them has been read and re-read in connection with some one of the puzzle pictures.

We want to reiterate what we have previously said about the answers—that no one person knows all of them; that the judges will know them only after the sets of solutions have been turned in.

There is always a number of persons in this world who will do anything to make money; their standard of honesty is low; they value a few cents more than a decent reputation. This is the class of person that is seeking to palm off on the contestants so-called sets of solutions for the puzzle pictures.

Imagine those people offering to sell the correct answers if they knew them. Why, they wouldn't tell their dearest friend one correct solution if they REALLY knew it.

A correct set of solutions would stand a chance of being worth $1,000 in gold to them. You can imagine them selling this opportunity to win $1,000 for a few pennies, can't you?

The fact is that these people think to impose on your credulity. It is up to you not to be imposed upon, for they have no way of knowing any more about the correct solutions than you have.

These unscrupulous persons are pitting their brains against yours. Why should you pay for an inferior article?

Keep your good money. It seems a shame to waste it.

Naturally you wish to get correct solutions to all the puzzle pictures that you can. It is difficult now, for they have no answers to all the seventy-five pictures. The person who is able to do this will be very skilful.

But the list of cash prizes is so great that, even if you are not able to carry off the first prize, there are still one hundred and fifty-four other cash prizes open to you.

Of course there is no telling how many of the pictures you will have to solve correctly to win the second prize of $800 in gold, or the third prize of $500 in gold, or any of the other cash awards. The puzzle pictures are not difficult for the contestants. But there is certainly a grand opportunity for every one—when you consider that there are one hundred and fifty-five cash prizes offered.

The American has not omitted to put a premium on skill and patience in this contest. It has done all that is possible outside of solving the puzzle pictures for you. It has placed at your service a guide containing all the answers and leaving it to you to pick out the correct solutions.

The back pictures may be obtained at the regular rates of the American, that is, one cent for each daily picture and five cents for each Sunday picture.

The guide may be obtained for 25c and five cents extra, if sent by mail.

With the contest well on its way, it is for the contestants to put a little extra thought into the solving of the pictures. Some of them have been very easy; some of them harder. You can be fairly sure of the easy ones. Devote a little more time to the solving of the more difficult ones. Any added effort will repay you.

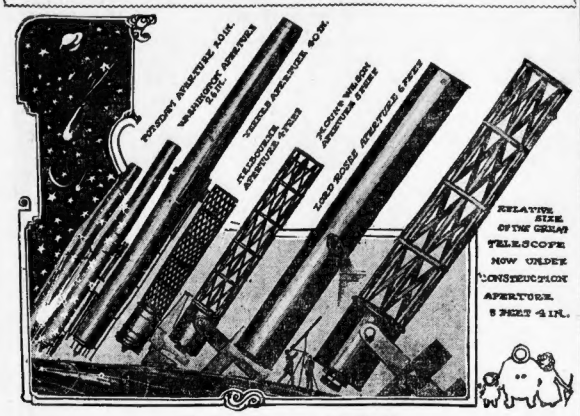
The World's Mightiest Telescope That Is to Stand on Top of Mount Wilson, and Others



The Great Telescopes of the World

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE gigantic telescope that the Carnegie Solar Observatory is to possess on the summit of Mount Wilson in California, will be by far the most powerful instrument of observation that man has ever turned upon the heavens. It will be even a greater advance in its line than the mighty "Imperator" is among steamships.

A year or two ago it looked as if it might prove impossible to construct this immense instrument, because the disk of glass, made in France, to be ground into a concave mirror at Pasadena, exhibited bubbles and imperfections which, it was feared, would interfere with its usefulness.

But further examination indicates that the difficulties may be avoided and the work of grinding and polishing is going forward.

This telescope will have a clear "aperture" of 100 inches, or eight feet four inches! By aperture is meant the diameter of the round glass as it is exposed to the stars.

There are two kinds of telescopes—"reflectors," which have a concave parabolic mirror to catch the rays of light and bring them to a focus; and "refractor," which possess, instead of a reflecting mirror, a compound lens called the "object-glass," which brings the rays of light to a focus on the side away from the object under examination. By using a reflector the observer, so to speak, turns his back upon the heavens, while with the refractor he looks directly through the telescope toward the object in the sky. In both cases what he really sees is an image of the object formed by the rays of light in the focus, and he magnifies the image with a kind of microscope called the "eye-piece."

A REFLECTOR

The new giant, as already indicated, is to be a reflector. Both kinds of telescope have their peculiar advantages, but the reflector is superior in astronomical photography.

In the picture accompanying this article you will find a graphic representation of six of the greatest telescopes now in existence, compared in size with the new telephone for Mount Wilson.

Three of the telescopes shown, with their names and apertures attached, are refractors, as is indicated by their long metallic tubes. They carry their object-glasses at the upper end of the tube.

The fourth and largest closed tube is that of the great Lord Rosse telescope in Ireland, which was made in the middle of the nineteenth century, and was long the wonder of the astronomical world. It, however, is not a refractor, but a reflector, the maker having chosen to give it a closed tube, which has now been found to be unnecessary.

Two of the others for three, including the unfinished giant) have open-work tubes. These are all reflectors.

Now, in order that the reader may get an idea of the relative power implied by the different apertures shown, it is necessary to say that this is measured by the amount of light that the lens or the mirror "grasps." This amount is much greater than would appear from a mere inspection of the comparative sizes. It depends upon the square of the aperture. Thus, it will be seen that the new telescope is 100 inches in aperture, while the Rosse telescope, the next in size, has an aperture of seventy-two inches. But to measure the real superiority of the new instrument we must compare the squares of these numbers. The square of 100 is 10,000, and that of seventy-two is only 5,184. So we see that the one is very nearly double the other.

But this does not tell the whole story. The Rosse telescope has a very imperfect mirror, made of a special material called speculum metal, which is far inferior for the purpose to glass covered with a reflecting film. On this account the effective superiority of the new instrument will be much greater than a comparison of the squares of the respective apertures indicates.

BIGGER THAN YERKES

The new giant will, on the same principle, be six and a quarter times more powerful than the great Yerkes telescope, the largest refractor now in existence, and about two and three-quarters times more powerful than the five-foot reflector already in action on Mount Wilson.

One naturally wonders what this telescopic monster will reveal in the heavens. I observe that it has been said that it will show "objects of the size of a man" on the moon. But this statement must be taken with a grain of allowance. If it were not for atmospheric difficulties, which we know at present no means of avoiding, a 100-inch telescope might bear a magnifying power of 10,000 diameters, which would bring the moon within an apparent distance of only a little more than twenty miles when it is actually nearer to the earth. In fact, however, it is doubtful if such a power will ever be employed, and if employed it would not give a distinct image.

But the immense amount of light gathered by the great mirror will make much lower magnifying powers far more effective than hitherto, and most interesting discoveries may confidently be expected from this cause. Its principal use, however, will be in photographing on an unprecedented scale, the great nebulous clouds and streams and clusters of stars that abound in the universe, and here its superiority will be so commanding that the man will almost seem to have provided himself with a new and marvellous eye for surveying the illimitable wonders of space.

The Head Waitress

The Steady Customer Denies the Manager's Canard

By HANK

"WHAT'S this I hear about you and Marie having a date?" asked the Head Waitress of the Steady Customer in the Cafe L'Enfant.

"Nothing to it," he replied. "Where did you get it?"

"From Mr. Fiskes, the manager," said the Head Waitress, "and he told me he had it straight, too. He said that Marie asked for an hour off so she could get all dolled up to go out with you. Of course, it ain't none of my business, and——"

"Cut it out," interrupted the Steady Customer. "Mr. Fiskes is kidding you, or Marie is kidding him. Not that I wouldn't dearly love to take both you and Marie out any time, but I'm getting too old to go gallivanting around with two such beauteous dames."

"I guess Marie was kidding," said the Head Waitress. "All them casaloes is great kidders, especially the blondes. You see, every guy that goes up to the desk hands out something foolish while he's paying his check, and Marie has to take their money with one hand and wave to them with the other or they'd be broken-hearted. I don't see much nourishment in it myself, but all those poor boobs act as if one smile from the cashier had taken ten years off their age, and they go out simpering like a lot of love-sick swine."

"Swains, I suppose you mean," corrected the Steady Customer.

"Have it your own way," said the Head Waitress, "you literary guys is great sticklers for correct pronouncements, ain't you. Well, I'm glad to hear you ain't fallen for no blonde because I've taken an interest in you and I'd hate to see you going nutty over a pair of big eyes and a golden dome. Not that Marie ain't a nice girl, and one of the nicest I ever seen, but she shouldn't be wasting her time with any of you newspaper guys."

"What's the matter with us?" asked the Steady Customer. "I'm surprised to hear you talk that way, Louise."

"Are you?" said she. "Well, long ago in the time, distant past, I showered my young and innocent affection on one of you literary blokes, and for a time I was in the seventh heaven of happiness. He used to write me poems, too, real love ones. I remember one that went something like this:

"Louise, Louise, you little tease,
I'm really mad about you;
You say you truly love me, dear,
I'd hate to ever doubt you;
Some day, we'll married be, and then
Our lives we'll link together,
And travel down the broad highway,
No matter what the weather."

"Pretty good," said the Steady Customer.

"Oh, yes, I raved about it," said the Head Waitress, "until I found out that he was re-using down the broad highway' for every poem he wrote.

"But that's no reason why you should be down on all literary lights," exclaimed the Steady Customer.

"A child once stung never goes back to the bee-hive, as Kipling says," replied Louise, "and, believe me, Kipling was right."

The Mistakes of Jennie

BY HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a City Girl

The man stared at her covetously

CHAPTER XX

THE boss had given Jennie "a week's notice" and she was to leave the following Saturday.

In the meantime she was devoting every spare minute she had to looking for another job. But it was the dull season and most of the firms were "laying off" their help instead of hiring any.

Coming from work one evening the latter part of the week she noticed the FELLOW waiting on the corner for her, but she saw him first and dodged back, going out by another door, saying to herself, "I can't, can't do THAT—unless it comes to either THAT or STARVING."

Going home on the car she met a girl friend who knew of a place where she thought Jennie could get a job, but it was only $5 a week. Anyway, that was better than nothing, and it might tide her over until she could find a better job. So next day at lunch time she hurried over to apply for the new place.

It was a dark, dingy sort of a place, with no other girls working there, and seemed very sordid indeed compared to the other place where she had been working.

The man stared with covetous eyes at Jennie, telling her she would have very little to do, that he just wanted someone to stay there and answer the phone and things like that when he wasn't in—and Jennie was to come to work the following Monday morning.

If Jennie had not been so pleased and excited at getting the job she might have noted that the man held her hand much longer than necessary when he bade her good-bye.

THIN FOR YEARS—"GAINS 22 POUNDS IN 23 DAYS"

Remarkable Experience of F. Gagnon, Builds Up Weight Wonderfully.

"I was all run down to the very bottom," writes F. Gagnon. "I had to quit work I was so weak. Now, thanks to Sargol, I look like a new man. I gained 22 pounds in 23 days."

"Sargol has put 10 pounds on me in 14 days," states W. D. Roberts. "It has made me sleep well, enjoy what I ate and enabled me to work with interest and pleasure."

"I weighed 132 pounds when I commenced taking Sargol. After taking 20 days I weighed 144 pounds. Sargol is the most wonderful preparation for flesh building I have ever seen," declares D. Martin, and J. Meier adds: "For the past twenty years I have taken medicine every day for indigestion and got thinner every year. I took Sargol for forty days and feel better than I have felt in twenty years. My weight has increased from 150 to 170 pounds."

When hundreds of men and women—and there are hundreds, with more coming every day—living in every nook and corner of this broad land, voluntarily testify to weight increases ranging all the way from 10 to 35 pounds, given them by Sargol, you must admit Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Thin Reader, that there must be something in this Sargol method of flesh building after all.

Hadn't you better look into it, just as thousands of others have done? Many thin folks say: "I'll give most anything to put on a little extra weight," but when someone suggests a way they exclaim, "Not a chance. Nothing will make me plump. I'm built to stay thin." Until you have tried Sargol, you do not and cannot know that this is true.

Sargol has put pounds of healthy "stay there" flesh on hundreds who doubted and in spite of doubts. You don't have to believe in Sargol to grow plump from its use. You just take it and watch weight pile up, hollows vanish and your figure round out to pleasing and normal proportions. You watch yourself when you begin and again when you finish and you let the scales tell the story.

Sargol is absolutely harmless. It is a highly concentrated, pure food tablet and you get a full size package sent by return mail free of charge. An Englishman who was appointed to an important post in China got married soon after. Among the recipients of the usual little cardboard boxes containing a piece of wedding cake was a Chinese merchant with whom the bridegroom had an outstanding account for goods supplied. After the honeymoon one of the first persons the newly-wedded husband met was his Celestial creditor.

"And how did you like the cake?" said the Englishman, laughingly, after the usual congratulations.

"Ah ha!" returned the Chinaman, with a cunning leer, "me no such big fool to eat him, ah. Me put cakes in fire. Burn him up. Ha! ha!"

"Oh, that's too bad," said the Englishman, very much hurt. "You might have tasted it at least, out of compliment to my wife and myself. Why, didn't you?"

"Me too cute, ah," said the Celestial, with the same cunning smile. "Me one me monee, ah; sendee poison cake; I eat him; I die; you no payee up. Hoop-la! Ha! ha! I know you Anglees!"

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

JULY 3.—It occurred to me, when Manette and I were tramping home that evening, after the militant suffragette had tried to hold me up, that there was a warning in the incident. I look like a tramp, as she said, and Manette, in spite of her clothes, looks like a princess.

What is it I cannot define, but one of her sex can never disguise the fact that she was born to purple and fine linen. She may outlive every natural grace and may be reduced to rags, but there is always that indefinable something that told of better things in the past. I looked at Manette critically as she tripped ahead of me in the footpath, and this is what I saw: A little bare head with a shock of curls just reaching to her shoulder, for we had had her hair cut short before we left town, and the growth was all new and untamed.

She wore a blue gingham with half the buttons off the back. There were rents in it, and through one rent I caught a glimpse of an exquisitely trimmed petticoat for Richards had refused to let her darling wear the coarse muslin garments that were best fitted for the occasion. She wore bait hose, with a hole above which her knee protruded, and her little pig legs were scratched by briars and brambles.

But one could tell by a glimpse that she was not an ordinary child, and I wondered if it was because of the proud little way in which she carried her head, or because of her total unconsciousness that she was born aristocrat. "I murmured.

HER BEAUTY

She looked up at me in laughter at some prank in the pup, and I was struck more forcibly than ever with her most unusual beauty. It wasn't altogether her hair and her eyes, her perfect features and her exquisite coloring; there was a look of her soul shining through, and that is as near as I can express it. If you could see her, Diary, you would understand why I never look at the child without some appreciation, and her beauty and her money, sometimes I wonder if there are any more marvellous people in heaven to keep all the evil-hearted away.

I have known that the young belong to us always. Nothing, and no one, may ever estrange them from us. They are ours forever and then, alas, in many things no one can say of the child that it does grow up.

There is comfort in the thought, and it is not the only comfort, for we learn as we grow older that the child that is gone is spared much, and is SAFE. I know the world is dreary and almost impossible without Manette, but every day I grow more reconciled to the loss of Elizabeth. She was happy all her life. The little girl trudging along in the path ahead of me, is happy now, but I will be [illegible] by and by.

I suppose it was this constant apprehension that led me to call Mrs. Allen to the porch after supper and tell her that I am not the poor clerk she imagines, but one of the detested millionaire class, resting from excessive luxury.

I told her my name and she laughed. She said she had guessed it the second day. No one, she said, could look at Manette and think for a moment that she had been brought up in denial. She could not explain it, except that the child was always so unconscious of her clothes.

"She rises above them," she said, and it makes me very proud.

I have always had the theory—I wonder how it will evolve—that if Manette is accompanied by the best as a child, she will never strut like a peacock when she is grown. She will always be unconscious of her price marks.

TO THE MANNER BORN

She will never build conversation on the price of her gown, nor attempt to erect pride and station on the cost of a hat. She will never, and of that I am sure, remember that her clothes cost more than the clothes of her associates and show it in her manner. I said something to this effect to Mrs. Allen and her reply gave me a new viewpoint.

"She won't remember what things cost," she said, somewhat dryly, "because she has never had to earn the price. The girl who starts herself in necessities for a month that she may afford a $20 dollar gown will never forget to the day of her death what the gown cost. Unconsciousness of clothes is a good trait, but Manette's unconsciousness will be largely due to ignorance. When one pays the price one remembers."

I did not seem to make her quite understand what I meant, and neither did I understand her. I wanted, I explained, for the child to grow up with a soul above ribbons. "And yet," she replied, "whoever has charge of her wardrobe takes care that she has more ribbons than any child her age should have."

I agreed to that with a sigh. When a little girl is transformed by her years into a peacock, instead of a thinking, helpful woman, it is her mother who is to blame, never her father. Manette has no mother, but her nurse and her Aunt Hallie make her attire the joy of their existence.

I, who take the place of a father to her, would prefer that she never hear the subject of dress, but those who take the place of her mother make her attire the first consideration. That, Diary, is a fond weakness of all mothers.

I gave Mrs. Allen Mrs. Spencer's address and also that of Richards. "It has occurred to me," I said, "that if anything happened to me, either address will be useful to you."

She found considerable amusement in the thought of what an exodus to the woods there would be of young women if it were known that such a wealthy unattached bachelor were spending his Summer there. "They would chase you harder," she said, "than the pup chases the rabbits."

SHE SYMPATHIZES

She laughed so heartily I asked if she would enjoy the sight, and she replied that she wouldn't.

"I feel sorry for any unmarried man these days," with some spirit. "Either the women are the mercenary kind, hunting him down for his money, or they are the suffrage kind, hunting him down like a policeman hunts criminals. I often tell my husband it is good he got his thirty years ago, for there isn't much choice of women these days."

From one of their own sex! Did I said it I would be insulted.

July 6—I have not heard the last of that woman who thought I was a kidnaper of children. She came riding to our picnic spot again today, and this time she rode alone.

Manette and I were sitting on a log fishing. At least, I was fishing. She had her shoes and stockings off, her little skirts tucked up, and was puddling around at the water's edge, digging up soft black mud, which she carried to the shore and made into pies, a big log serving as her kneading board, or mixing bowl. I don't really know if pies are mixed or kneaded.

The suffragette tied her horse to a sapling and came to where we were thus occupied. I did not turn my head, and Manette, obeying whispered instructions from me, went on with her culinary work without heeding her.

Nothing Doing

Hubby returned home rather late—well after midnight, to be precise—and, as often happens in such cases, wifey, though irked, was not asleep.

In consequence, breakfast that morning was a gloomy, silent meal. In vain, hubby strove to clear the air, and by intoned levity, to dispel the atmosphere of constraint which hung heavily everywhere.

"A penny for your thoughts, my love!" he ventured presently.

The lady thus addressed stared at him grimly.

"For two," she retorted, "I'd say exactly what I thought you!"

Hubby made no effort to raise the bidding.

Side-Tracked

"Never have I known," said the club gossip, "a more unfortunate case than that of poor Mrs. Meekleigh. There is a man born for achievement of glory who has reaped nothing but oblivion and the suppression of every hope—a man born to command, who has only achieved subordination to another's more determined will."

"What happened to him?" came the chorused query.

"He went and got married!"

KEEP WATCH TOMORROW FOR PARASOL GIRL

Boston AMERICAN readers will have another opportunity tomorrow to earn a neat reward in the sum of $150 in gold coin.

"The Girl with the Green Parasol" will be "at home" to Sunday AMERICAN readers at Paragon Park, Nantasket, tomorrow afternoon.

Have you keenness? Have you alertness? Have you perception? Tomorrow will answer these questions for you.

"THE GIRL WITH THE GREEN PARASOL" will go to Paragon Park tomorrow and will be in plain sight, inside and outside of Paragon Park, between the hours of 2 p. m. and 5 p. m. The Boston AMERICAN absolutely guarantees her appearance. She will stroll along outside of Paragon Park until 3 p. m. She will then enter the Park and visit the sea lions. After that hour she will attempt to enjoy the following amusements:

The merry-go-round
The two roller coasters.
The circle swing.
The Scenic Temple.
The roulette wheel

and as many others as possible until caught.

Someone will be the richer by $150 for joining the interesting search tomorrow. The only requirement is that the person who identifies "The Girl with the Green Parasol" must have in his or her hand, in plain sight, a copy of the page announcement which will appear in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN and shall say to her "YOU ARE THE GIRL WITH THE GREEN PARASOL."

The first man, woman or child who identifies her as directed will receive the $150.

It should be remembered that "The Girl with the Green Parasol" will not admit her identity to any person who fails to use the language directed, word for word.

Go to Nantasket tomorrow.

Keep your eyes open—and use them.

Greet, as directed, every girl or woman you see with a green parasol.

Don't take any chances—don't let any girl or woman who carries a green parasol get by you without the accusation.

Remember, it means a pot of money for you and—you never can tell—it might just as well be you as your neighbor who will receive this bag of gold.

It is worth your while to devote your afternoon tomorrow to the search. You will enjoy the delightful boat trip to Nantasket and you have every chance of returning in the evening richer by $150.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor.

Stocks were rather slow in movement today and irregular as to prices. There was not much business done in Lake issues. Copper Range closed at a decline of 1¼. New Haven finished with a small gain in this market. Trading here lacked interest.

That was true also of New York where the list averaged in price at the end about the same as at the finish yesterday. Trading for the session did not total 100,000 shares. Bond business was less than yesterday but in excess of Thursday's record.

Copper metal was not only firm today but showed rising tendency. American Smelting and Refining interests are asking 15⅛ cents a pound for electrolytic. Others are said to be quoting 15 cents.

The New York bank statement shows an increase in excess cash reserve. The average statement reads excess cash reserve $25,258,000, increase $5,173,000; loans, decrease, $5,692,000; Specie, increase, $4,407,000; legal tenders, increase, $657,000; net deposits, decrease, $756,000; circulation, increase, $4,000. Actual statement—loans, decrease, $13,074,000; specie, increase, $6,472,000; legal tenders, increase, $815,000; net deposits, decrease, $2,178,000; reserve, increase, $7,885,500.

New York Opened Dull.

At the week-end New York traders were more inclined to even up than to extend operations. The market opened dull and with prices irregular. Changes were small in most cases. The Hill stocks were prominent, Great Northern preferred advancing a point while Northern Pacific rose 1-2. The same amount of gain was made in General Electric. Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated both opened 1-2 lower. The volume of business was small.

Heaviness and uncertainty ruled in the London market, foreign shares showing an irregular tone.

The New York curb list was irregular.

President Appeals to Party.

So much discord has developed among Democratic members of the House Currency Committee that President Wilson, finding the administration currency bill in danger of being essentially altered, is going to appeal to his party and he wants the measure acted upon in caucus. There will be a caucus fight to have the bill amended. It will be led by Representative Henry. It is understood he will not press his amendments, which would revolutionize the currency plan advocated by the President, further in committee, but will wait until the matter comes up in caucus. As President Wilson's friends will be in a great majority there, his friends think the insurgents will be squelched.

It is reported that the President regards it as inexpedient to incorporate in the bill the findings of the Pujo Money Trust committee, and that he had pointed out the necessity for keeping recommendations based on these findings separate.

Chairman Owen of the Senate Banking Committee says that on a personal poll of Senate Democrats he had found forty-seven who favored taking up currency reform at the present session, and two who favored a postponement until Fall. Senator Owen said he had also found six Republicans who favored immediate action, and also that differences in the House committee would not delay the Senate's consideration of the bill after tariff revision was disposed of.

Aimed at United Fruit.

When Senator John Sharp Williams was asked why Democrats, who campaigned on the proposition that they would cut the cost of living, especially as regards food, had proposed to put a tariff on bananas, which are not grown in this country and are therefore regarded as particularly eligible for the free list, the Mississippi statesman replied:

"First, because it is not a basic article of food and second because the banana trade of this country is absolutely controlled by the United Fruit Company, which also is buying up the banana lands abroad. Again, the tax is made so small that it cannot possibly affect the retail price, and the fruit trust will have to pay it."

Results of the Currency Bill.

President Frank A. Vanderlip of the National City Bank of New York in telling the faults, from bankers' point of view, of the proposed currency bill says:

"The fundamental objection to the plan is the character of the control which it provided," he says. "The objection is not to the powers granted but to the hands in which they are placed.

"If the appointing power lay with the banks themselves and the detached character of the board was maintained, a board could not be created which would be competent to assume the responsibilities. The trouble lies in separating the management of a financial institution from its ownership. We might as well expect legislators not responsible to their constituency to represent wisely the interests of their constituency.

"The objection may be made that a management is needed that will represent the interests of the people and not those of the owners of the banks. That seems to me a misconception both of the relation of the owners of the banks to their invested capital and to the interests of the whole people.

"It must not be forgotten that the men who control the capital invested in the banking business can and will withdraw that capital if the conditions of the business do not in their opinion warrant the continuance of the investment.

"It seems to me that the only proper method of control must be through a board composed of experienced practical bankers in direct touch with current business, who are selected for short terms by the member banks and who are responsible to those banks in the same way that the executive officers of a national bank are responsible to the stockholders.

"There may well be a government board whose sole function should be to see that all statutes are obeyed by the management.

"The one point in the detail of the bill from which I would most sharply dissent is in the creation of Federal treasury notes instead of bank notes.

"No bank management and no board of control can tell how much currency is needed at any given time for the conduct of the business of the country. That will be determined if the people are left free to determine it with just the same accuracy that the number of checks afloat is determined."

He thinks that what Congress should aim at in financial legislation is the mobilization of bank reserves, the retirement of the present bond-secured circulation by a method fair to banks, which have been forced to buy government bonds above their legitimate market value, the authorization of a bank note currency that will be responsive in volume to the demands of commerce and the creation of a discount market.

Financial News in Brief.

It is said that furnace trouble will keep the Phelps-Dodge Refinery on Long Island closed for about ten days and that this will reduce the market supply of more than 12,000,000 pounds.

President Vail said that the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is not surprised at the government suit filed against it in Oregon, as it had been in the air for some time.

American steel manufacturers do not like the decrease in the steel trade in Germany. A slackening of business there would bring German manufacturers into this market as competitors under the new tariff.

It is thought in New York that President E. N. Brown may reconsider his resignation and go back to Mexico as head of the National Railways of Mexico.

For the fiscal year ending with June, net earnings of the Federal Light & Traction Company increased $151,721, or 18.2 per cent. The June gain amounted to $7,585. Gross for the year increased $290,787 and for the month $18,041.

Standard Oil of Indiana will spend from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 for a new Wyoming plant to take care of far Western trade.

Utah Copper Company production for June was 11,037,949 pounds, the largest in the history of the company, excepting August last. Nevada Consolidated output was 6,344,863 pounds, compared with 5,933,275 in May.

CALIFORNIA ANTI-LAND LAW BEATEN BY JAPS

SACRAMENTO, Cal., July 26.—Japanese land owners of California have found a loophole in the anti-land law which will enable them to establish practically perpetual ownership of land for themselves and their heirs, thus defeating that provision of the act which was designed to force them out of ownership by death.

Incorporation is the weapon to which the Japanese farmer is resorting partially to nullify the new law. Oriental farmers are combining their farm land units and incorporating stock companies, in the belief that the stock in the corporations, on their death, may be transferred to their heirs.

Twenty-four Japanese land companies had filed articles of incorporation today, bringing the total for the last two weeks to more than fifty. Reports from several county recorders indicate that, within the next two weeks, the Secretary of State can expect hundreds of other land companies. The maximum life granted to a domestic corporation under the California law is fifty years.

Force 'Wolf' Lamar to Go on Trial

District Attorney Marshall Says Man Has Promised to Surrender.

NEW YORK, July 26.—David Lamar, the "Wolf of Wall Street," against whom a supplementary indictment, charging him with impersonating Speaker Clark, Senator Stone and Congressman Palmer, has been found, will be forced, if necessary, to stand trial.

United States District-Attorney Marshall said: "If Lamar will not come here voluntarily, we shall bring him here whether he wants to come or not. If his counsel has announced that he will remain in Washington and resist removal, it is a change of attitude, for he informed the District Attorney there that Lamar would remain only long enough to finish some business which he wished to attend to which would not take more than a few days, and that he would then come to New York and surrender himself."

CASSIDY TELLS OF MAKING ICE CREAM PURER

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Inspector James O. Jordan, of the Bureau of Milk Inspection has called the attention of ice cream dealers to the new ice cream law secured by the AMERICAN.

This law compels the use of cream substitutes like condensed skimmed milk, and skimmed milk cannot be employed exclusively. The law provides that ice cream shall contain not less than seven per cent. milk fat, and if flavored with fruit, shall be flavored with sound, clean, matured fruit. If it contains nuts, the nuts must be sound, matured and non-rancid.

It is the wish of the Bureau of Milk Inspection that all dealers in ice cream shall be acquainted with the standard set forth, so that there may be opportunity to comply with its provisions.

The penalty for violation of the law is $100. The inspectors of milk have the same authority to act under the ice cream law as under the provisions of the milk law.

I tried to have this law provide that ice cream should contain 12 to 14 per cent. butter fat. That's what the government requires. But a special committee of the House refused to concur in the Senate Committee recommendation of 10 per cent. The compromise of seven per cent. is a great step in advance, as before the passage of this law there was no standard for the ice cream in the State.

A seven per cent. ice cream does allow the use of substitutes. But it stops the employment of substitutes exclusively.

Under the efficient supervision of Inspector Jordan the people of Boston will be assured of getting a better ice cream than they have been getting before.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The AMERICAN Is Willing to Hope and Assume That the New President of the New Haven Intends to Run His Road for the Good of New England

The AMERICAN is so anxious to have the New England railroads COME BACK into public confidence and return to LEGITIMATE railroading that it is quite willing to assume that Mr. Howard Elliott, the new president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, takes up his new duties with a firm purpose to accomplish these results.

It would have been better if Mr. Elliott's selection had come from men NOT IDENTIFIED with the New Haven's RUINOUS policy of the last ten years.

So long as Morgans and Rockefellers and the trunk lines control the New England railroads, the PUBLIC will not give them the FULL MEASURE OF CONFIDENCE.

So long as the railroad MONOPOLY continues to exist, the public will continue to fear that the POLICY OF MONOPOLY has not been ABANDONED.

We have learned in this community, during recent sad experiences, that railroad presidents are NOT THE MASTERS of their railroads, but are the mere agents of men who have small personal interest in the good fortune of the railroads, but a very large interest in MILKING the railroads.

Mr. Elliott bears a good reputation as a RAILROAD MAN. He cannot but appreciate that Mr. Mellen failed because the task set for him was IMPOSSIBLE OF ACCOMPLISHMENT. Mr. Elliott's modesty would forbid him to undertake to succeed at the same task. The AMERICAN is willing to HOPE and to ASSUME that it is a different task which he now undertakes.

This newspaper will watch his work with an UNPREJUDICED—even with a FRIENDLY eye, trusting that soon the Morgan and Rockefeller interests will cease to BURDEN the New Haven Railroad with their DISADVANTAGEOUS CONNECTIONS, and that the acquisitions made at the cost of the honor of individuals and the dignity and inviolability of the laws of New England will be surrendered to independent enterprise and to the public.

This Is Just About What Men Think of Women---

The Anti-Suffrage Idiot Especially Has These Ideas

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

A young man named Benjamin Lawrence Taylor has sold to us for one cent, which we gladly pay, the following clipping from the Review of Towanda, Pa.:

HIS MODEST REQUIREMENTS.

Wanted—The woman who has been doing my washing has gone back on me. I must have a wife at once; would like a white woman, between twenty-five and thirty-five years of age; a maiden, who has not even given herself to any so-called Christian societies, or will forever renounce same and give herself up entirely to love, respect and obey me, while I love, cherish and protect her; my judgment always to be final and complete.

Does not that most beautifully represent the attitude of the average conceited, second rate, small, worthless and incompetent male individual?

You may be pretty sure that this man who wants a wife is very strong in his opinion that women ought not to vote.

Observe how carefully this man who needs a washwoman—and is willing to have her do the washing for nothing—specifies that the woman shall have no interests, no thoughts of her own.

HIS judgment is to be "always final and complete." The poor wife—washwoman—is "to love, obey and respect me"—that ME being the gentle idiot who advertises.

In that short advertisement there is the real belief, the actual inside sentiment, of nine hundred and ninety-nine out of one thousand men that oppose woman suffrage.

They want a wife and washwoman combined if they happen to be poor. And they want a wife and a slave and flatterer combined if they happen to be rich.

They don't want a THINKING human being as a companion. They want a humble, cringing creature to flatter them and obey them.

Many bachelors of the anti-suffrage kind keep a dog, because a dog with its slavish manners, licking the master's feet, standing any kind of abuse, AND ALWAYS LOOKING UPON THE MASTER AS A HERO, comes as near as possible to the anti-suffrage idea of a wife.

The wonder is that so many women have for so many centuries actually managed to love, and consented to obey and respect the type of idiot represented in this advertisement and represented also in the average male denunciation of female suffrage.

We advise our friends who work for equal suffrage to cut out this precious advertisement and frame it as a sample of the opinions and desires of their opponents.

There are various habits. One is the habit of riding properly in trains, under ground, above ground, or on the surface.

First, find a STEEL car if you can. You can learn to tell the steel cars from the wooden cars—even when the wooden cars are painted to imitate metal.

The rivets and bolts on the steel car are your guide.

If you can't find a steel car of course you must ride in the wooden car. If you do that, when the ride is finished talk to your friends about persuading the distinguished lawmakers to forbid wooden cars hereafter.

When you find your car, of steel or wood, take your seat, if you can get it, in the MIDDLE of the car, on the RIGHT-HAND SIDE.

The middle of the car is the safest place, because it is farthest from both ends, where the bump will come in case of a head-on or rear-end collision.

The right-hand side is the safe side of the car—we mean the side on your right as you look in the direction in which the train is going.

The train goes on the right-hand track, and when you sit on the right-hand side you are on the side away from the train that will pass you on the other track.

Sometimes the train on the other track is a freight train carrying a load of iron. If a piece of iron gets out of place it will rip out all the windows on the side of the car next to it—and that isn't pleasant.

About once every month some passenger train is "side-swiped." That means that it is "swiped" all along its side by something sticking out of a freight train on the other track. The passengers also are apt to be "side-swiped"—uncomfortably under such circumstances.

You may say, "Not all the passengers can possibly ride in the middle of the car on the right-hand side, and not all can get into the steel car if a wooden car is on the train." That is true. But remember that the most careless and indifferent thing in the world is the average human being.

Not one in a hundred will take the trouble to do the very simple things in life that will prolong life and make it worth while.

That is why not one in a hundred reaches life's proper limit.

Letters from American Readers

CONVINCED ABOUT RECIPROCITY.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Under the existing tariff foreign ships have a complete monopoly in our ocean trade. The new tariff bill, if passed in its present form, will be even more unfavorable to the growth and expansion of our merchant marine. We need a tariff at least high enough to allow for a ten per cent. rebate of duties on goods imported in American ships.

It is said that the preferential duties clause would violate some of our treaties with other countries. Our legislators should stop making treaties that are inimical to our best interests—stop giving everything away and getting nothing in return.

Every editorial like that headed "A Convincing Object Lesson of the Result of Neglecting Reciprocity," is a blow struck in the right direction. More power to you! Keep up the good work!

LEON ACKERMAN.

THE BRYAN POINT OF VIEW.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Ought anybody to be surprised at anything that William Jennings Bryan does? It seems that he considers anything that he does is all right but what anybody else does is all wrong. If his present job doesn't pay let him quit.

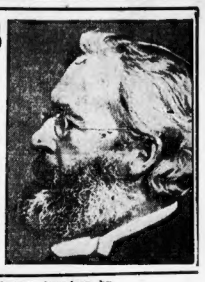
Mental Virtue—We Should Train Minds to Think Cleanly, Lest We Wreck Our Intellect by Prevarication—Rapidity of Events Hindering Progress.



Written for the Boston American by

DR. C. H. PARKHURST

NEXT to knowing how to behave, the best thing a schoolboy can learn is how to think straight. The mind is a machine and of no value to a person unless he knows how to work it.

If three men fire at a mark and only one hits it it shows that two of them do not know how to shoot. The fault is probably not with their rifles, but with their not knowing how to handle them.

In the same way the fault is not with our minds, but with not having learned to use them. The mind, every man's mind, is the very finest sort of a machine; it is as delicate a piece of apparatus as God ever made. It is the apparatus by which we are able to know things.

If we work it right, we shall know things as they are. If we work it wrong, we shall know things as they are not, that is, we shall not know them at all, only think that we know them. Knowing what is not so makes out the larger part of some people's knowledge.

We get our minds out of order by trying to make them think in a way that is not natural to them, exactly as any machine of wood or iron can be damaged if put to a speed other than that at which it was constructed to run.

We do this when, instead of letting our thinking take its easy and natural course, we frame our thinking into a track that will lead up to those convictions.

Wreck Honest Intellects by Allowing Selves to Prevaricate

We in this way wreck the honest disposition of our intellect by whipping it into a lie, and when we have once made it a liar there is no relying upon what it will tell us afterward.

A very considerable part of what we call our opinions is nothing more than our desires put in the form of dogmatic propositions. That is to say that we believe principally what we want to believe and then amuse ourselves and signify our desires by labeling them our intelligent convictions.

And it is because people have different kinds of desires and not because they have imperfect minds or different kinds of minds that there exists in the world such a wide diversity of opinions. If the matters in regard to which we have convictions were of no personal concern to ourselves, and if it made no difference to us personally whether a certain thing is true or the opposite of it is true, and our minds therefore left to work in their own natural way, and no constraint of wish or preference put upon them, then the conviction which we should arrive at would be a soundly intelligent one, and we should all of us reach the same conviction.

Four times six are twenty-four. It makes no difference to anybody whether it is twenty-five or twenty-four. In this case, then, the intellect, being left free to run its own course, undiverted by preference, moves straight to the truth; and there is no man, East or West, North or South, that does not come to the same result, provided only his mind has come to itself sufficiently to get into working order.

All of this was expressed in a single paragraph by our Lord when he said: "If thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light." A man who has not himself sufficiently under control to be able to think without having his thoughts shaped or colored by his personal preferences might as well not work his mind or have any mind to work with, so far as the value of his opinion is concerned, whether in matters of science, politics or religion.

Kaleidoscopic Rapidity Is Proving Hindrance to General Progress

WE are not making quite the progress in our social, industrial and political life that we should if events did not crowd upon each other with such kaleidoscopic rapidity.

We fall into the consequent habit of engrossing our attention with the sensationalism of some striking or tragic occurrence, without sufficient time elapsing—before some other startling event occurs—to give opportunity for the previous one to gain such hold upon our appreciations as to fix itself there and create in the public mind a sentiment so distinct and determined as to produce practical results.

We have a Triangle fire, then an earthquake, then a dynamite conspiracy, followed by an anti-Japanese flurry, a national election, a political embroilment at Albany, a Presidential scandal at Washington, etc., etc. In almost every event of the sort there is some truth to be digested, some lesson to be so well learned as to ensure its subsequent application.

To revert to the Triangle fire: No one would have supposed, on the morning following, that conditions would ever be allowed to exist that would render possible the recurrence of a similar disaster.

Events are certainly fitted to serve as means of progress, provided only that the fevered state of feeling which they induce has time given it to steady itself down to cool deliberation and persistent determination.

Our History as It Never Was Before

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

WHEN Dewey sailed across the mines to smash the Spanish fleet,
And do a job that all admit was thorough and complete,
He MIGHT have said: "I do not li ke the task of mine at all;
The work is hard, the hours long, the pay is very small,
The cost of living's going up, and I must fain engage
In gathering in the shekels that will keep me in old age.
So hard-a-port and head for home; it's time for me to go
And fill a fat engagement with a moving picture show."

When Jefferson sat down to pen upon a clean white page
A Declaration that would make King George turn red with rage,
He MIGHT have said: "The more I think, the more I cannot see
When we get down to good hard cash, what's in this job for me.
If these tight-fisted Colonists want me to make a war
By starting something with my pen, they ought to pay me more.
And so, as I am short of change, I'll throw this sheet away
And go to Monticello, where I'll hustle in the hay."

When Washington arrived one night beside the Delaware
Intent to rout the Hessians who were just across from there,
He MIGHT have said: "Those foolish words, 'My country, 'tis of thee,'
Should be rewritten so's to read 'My country, what of me?'
I've had no pay in seven months, not even one square meal,
My clothes are frayed, my army boots are run down at the heel.
The dough in what appeals to me, and so I'll disappear
Until I make a fortune at my trade of engineer."

Oh, they were foolish patriots, the men of other days;
They might have made their fortunes in a lot of different ways.
The wreath of fame 'round every name was guarantee enough
That if they took the platform they could gather in the stuff.
And yet, despite the meagre pay, without a wail or sob
Or groan about approaching age, they kept right on the job.
Unlike the modern statesman, who is right up to the minute,
They didn't serve their country for the money there was in it.
